Introduction

This volume—and the entire 25-part Archivum Obscurum series—is an archive of 4plebs threads, compiled from the /x/ paranormal board and related dark web forums. It's important to understand that none of these words are mine. Every sentence you're about to read was posted anonymously by someone else, somewhere deep in the Internet's forgotten layers. I've simply curated, organized, and preserved it. Some of it is brilliant. Some of it is disturbing. Some of it is completely unhinged. That's the point. These books serve as a snapshot of collective occult thought, filtered through anonymity, obsession, fear, and revelation. If you find something offensive or insane—remember, you're not reading me. You're reading the Internet itself, raw and unedited. This is documentation, not endorsement. But that's what makes it powerful. These are the ghost-words of the digital subconscious. I just bound them into something permanent.

For Balaam your only source is most likely just the Bible, don't take the Quranic account seriously as it comes from folk beliefs

For Simon Magus you have these sources:

Acts

Irenaeus Against Heresies Book 1 Chapter 23

Hippolytus Refutation of All Heresies

Clementine Recognitions and the Clementine Homilies

You can read all those, or...

Been praying and attending church for a little over a month, asking for guidance and purpose, for clarity as to whether or not I should keep writing or move on to something else. I've seen no real signs beyond a small bit of Scripture with a vague "All things are possible through God" message that might not be a sign at all. Starting to feel like my prayers are falling on deaf or uncaring ears. How am I supposed to tell my kids to pray for light and guidance and purpose when I'm starting to doubt its power? My prayers have changed now - I'm no longer asking just for guidance. I'm praying, begging, for God to forgive whatever sin I've committed to make Him abandon me, or to just please notice me for a second so I can know. I just want to know.

Well God gives us these things as rewards, to give us more joy in our lives.

But we don't have to indulge in them as rejecting the ways of the world is what God wants from us.

All in all both accepting and rejecting such stuff isn't a bad thing, but how we handle them determines what we receive from God. The more we sacrifice the more God will return it and double it, perhaps even triple or even quadruple it, be it here on Earth or in Heaven.

Jesus said to not focus on our treasure on Earth, instead focus on our treasure that's being built up in Heaven, so whatever we sacrifice here will add to our treasures in Heaven, and if we do indulge in that stuff here, well, yes it will lessen the treasures we will receive in Heaven but it won't cause us to get rejected from Heaven.

A lot is going to happen soon so be prepared to make the proper sacrifices when needed and then we will all experiences anything we want to be in God's New Earth, New Jerusalem.

The two are the same path, no man ever gets saved without confronting and embracing death head-on. In earlier ages men had both virtues within them, but the Devil has successfully labored for centuries to push the two roles apart, and now men are always sharply polarized into one of those two camps. If you have a strong fighting spirit and a strong love of wisdom you need to realize you are extraordinarily blessed and it would be highly perilous for you to waste that gift.

Or perhaps it was the two blue see through crystal tablets that when combined together, form a cube and were kept and stored that way inside of the ark if you read the descriptions of the tablets themselves or the ark.

A gateway for human tribes to cross through, and then close again behind them after the rains disappear after the Earth tilts back again.

For me, it's imagining seeing the first humans come up the Nile river and see that gigantic massive structure with the tablets at the top, and fellow celestial traveler Creator seeking frens waiting to teach them.

Some might go East and beyond, some north, but taking teachings with them.

Until we were ready finally, to inherit more knowledge.

After Rome destroyed the temple, and the ark carrying the tablets were evacuated, one of the supposed places of evacuation was to Africa.

This would seem strange if not for the fact that Moses was indeed chosen and empowered by the Creator to remove the tablets originally, and if indeed Moses was African, it strongly increases the odds of the tablets being taken to Africa in the ark.

>The Torah describes the writing as "inscribed from both their sides; on one side and on the other side they were inscribed."

>This means that the inscription was engraved through and through. As such, the words were clearly legible on one side and written in mirror writing on the other. Now there are two Hebrew letters, the ם and the ן, that are closed from all sides. The centers of these letters, Rav Chisda concludes, must have been miraculously suspended in place.

>Others teach that the writing was miraculously legible on each side—in other words, although the letters were engraved all the way through, they could nevertheless be read from right to left on both sides. Rabbeinu Bechaye explains that this is because the Torah can be understood on two levels, one revealed and one hidden.

I finally feel called to study the gnostic and apocryphal texts after several years of studying canon scripture and church history. It's not only difficult to understand for its complexity (mostly talking about the gnostic texts here) but also because I have to resist the temptation or find a balance between drawing conclusions that are contrary to what the ancient Christian fathers or modern academia say about it vs my own understandings. They are very mysterious texts.

JACOB BOEHME

You are reading this on a device that would have filled a skyscraper had it been built in 1956. You have terabytes of the world's accumulated wisdom at your fingertips via Google. You have a college education in your pocket. Einstein, Feynman, Gödel, Jung, the Wachowski Brothers, Turing, Fermi, Crick and Watson have all blazed an intellectual trail for you to follow. With all this going for you, your major contribution to society so far consists of a message board post theorizing that the castaways on Lost might be in Purgatory.

About 400 years ago, before the discovery of electricity and only 150 years after the invention of the printing press, a barely literate German cobbler came up with the idea that God was a binary, fractal, self-replicating algorithm and that the universe was a genetic matrix resulting from the existential tension created by His desire for self-knowledge.

Clearly, someone's been slacking off.

It all started one day around 1610; a young German shoemaker was looking at a pewter dish when a dazzling ray of reflected sunlight unexpectedly turned out to be a message from God.

Many people receive messages from God. However, these usually tend to run along the lines of "Kill! Kill! Kill!" Such messages are not particularly interesting unless you happen to be on wrong end of the ax.

Jakob Böhme's transmission was considerably deeper than the usual psychotic imperative. In fact, his vision (well, let's call it that) contained profound theological insights well beyond his educational level, which amounted to little more than Bible study and sole-cobbling techniques.

Böhme wrote about his experience and the strange thoughts which resulted, but he sensibly decided to keep these notions within his circle of close friends. His friends had different ideas and copied Böhme's manuscript without his permission, circulating it around the prominent intellectual circles of the day.

Böhme became a celebrity overnight — which was not a good thing. The local religious authorities were not amused. Luckily for Böhme, he was a Protestant and not a Catholic, so he was simply threatened with exile instead of the iron maiden.

Inconveniently, the visions kept coming. Although he was initially deterred by the threats of the local pastor, Böhme eventually began to write again, at first in secret and later in a handful of books. The majority of his work was not published until after his death.

His ideas were radical and exciting, and Böhme began to attract adherents — which again led to trouble. His radical and exciting ideas received the exact same reception the second time around, but this time he was actually banished. Böhme received a friendlier reception in Dresden, but the positive attention there only further infuriated the clerical authorities back home.

All the controversy took a toll on his health, and Böhme died at the age of 49. But his ideas would live on, helping to shape a vast lineage of occultists, philosophers and lunatics for centuries to come.

Böhme treatises were mostly Gnostic and kabbalistic in nature. His concepts often reflected Eastern spiritual concepts that were not widely known in Germany at the time. Böhme began with a radical rethink of the traditional Judeo-Christian God. He threw out the traditional picture of a guy with a beard and long robes in favor of an abstract, formless deity.

Prior to the creation of man, Böhme wrote, God was an undifferentiated single unity defined by the absence of everything else — the Abyss, or “Ungrund.” Creation was the result of the Ungrund dividing from its state of original unity — a proposition completely familiar to Taoists but foreign and offensive to Böhme’s fellow Lutherans.

Even more controversially, Böhme argued that God could not be omniscient and omnipotent, since He was eternal and unique. “He knows no beginning, and also nothing like Himself, and also no end,” Böhme wrote, arguing that God created man in His own image so that He could learn about Himself.

To initiate this learning process, God rendered Himself into positive and negative aspects — yin and yang to the Taoists, although the material substance of Böhme’s universe is not itself synonymous with God.

Prior to the initial split, God was only a potential mind with an unformed longing to know itself. After the split, God iterated into a binary-based matrix, continually increasing in complexity as He collected more and more information about Himself. In other words, Böhme’s God evolves with the passage of time, in sharp contrast to the traditional Judeo-Christian view of a perfect, complete and unchanging figure who exists outside the normal flow of time.

The positive and negative aspects of creation were necessarily opposed to each other, and Böhme believed that this conflict was at the heart of the universe’s logic and all of its processes. Since this tension is inherent to the design of all reality, evil and suffering are a necessary part of reality — and both originate with God.

The tension between God’s positive and negative aspects boils down to an identity crisis — cosmic self-loathing. The positive force is the part of God that chose to differentiate itself in search of self-knowledge; the negative force is the part of God that seeks to return to its original unified state (obliterating reality in the process). Böhme characterized this negative force as “divine wrath,” the eternal frustration of seeking a goal that can never be accomplished.

In Böhme’s cosmology, the wrathful element of God is the Father, the beneficent element is Jesus Christ, the Son. The syzygy of the conflict between the opposite poles created a process of change — the Holy Spirit, as the continual interaction of the Father and Son through time.

Böhme presented the universe as the product of the dueling forces of Father and Son, one bent on disordering and a return to unity (entropy), the other bent on ordering and harmonizing in the process of differentiation (organization), a formula now understood to foreshadow key concepts in chaos theory and genetic sequencing. The human body and soul, according to Böhme, were a microcosm of the divine model, akin to the holographic universe physics model first formally proposed in the 20th century.

Böhme expanded on these thoughts to develop theoretical frameworks encompassing virtually every aspect of the Christian mystical experience, covering everything from Sacred Geometry to the book of Genesis to the nature of Satan, the angels and the Antichrist.

With the basic underlying premise of creation firmly in hand, Böhme turned his attention to the details, integrating concepts from the Kabbalah and alchemy, and laying out a foundation for scientific and especially philosophical thought that exerted a wide-ranging influence on the elite minds of the Enlightenment (although the controversial nature of his assertions often kept that influence below the radar). Böhme's work reflected so many diverse spiritual concepts that he is considered to be the father of Theosophy — a precursor to the New Age movement which stipulates that all religions are basically talking about the same thing in different words.

After his death, Böhme's writings were quietly circulated among the elite minds of Europe. His ideas were pursued by everyone from Friedrich Nietzsche to Georg Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel (who revamped Böhme in a rationalist framework) to 20th century sci-fi author Philip K Dick, who had an extremely similar experience receiving an extremely similar revelation from a beam of pink light.

On the more disreputable end of the spectrum, Böhme was probably the single largest influence on the founders of modern occultism, including Aleister Crowley, Madame Blavatsky, and Adam Weishaupt, founder of the Illuminati, who got a lot of mileage out of Böhme's trademark imagery, including the famed "Illuminati eye" and the Ouroboros.

Small groups of adherents began to spring up. These early groups formed first among the Rosicrucians (a secret society active during Böhme's lifetime that was a precursor to modern Freemasonry) and a few small groups which, inspired by Böhme's tale of illumination in a ray of sunlight, began to refer to themselves as the Illuminati. Later, Weishaupt's Bavarian Illuminati would adopt some of Böhme's principles in their quest to rule the world — a purpose Böhme himself would have found laughable.

Jane Lead (1624-1704) Christian mystic, prophet, visionary, and prolific writer, whose divinely inspired writings are designed to lead holy and faithful souls toward attaining the highly coveted First-Resurrection-state. Called by God at age 16, her entire adult life was occupied with the interior path, and in writing down the many visions and revelations that she was blessed to receive. Her most foundational work is perhaps The Heavenly Cloud, where she leads the soul to discover the different states it must pass through: mystical death, resurrection, ascension, and glorification.

John Pordage (1607-1681) Anglican priest, medical doctor, and a man of deep mystical thought and experience. His best known work is Theologia Mystica, where he gives an account of the Divine Origin of all things, which he names the Globe of Eternity, or the Original Globe.

Jacob Boehme (1575-1624) German mystic whose highly illuminated writings deeply influenced Jane Lead and others of the Philadelphian Society. John Pordage had already studied Boehme for some time before he met Mrs. Lead, eventually introducing them to her. Interestingly, Jane was born the same year Boehme died, almost suggesting that the "mantle" was being passed on. Boehme tells us that his treatise on The Three Principles of the Divine Essence is the foundation for understanding all his other works.

William Law (1686 - 1761) English cleric and mystical writer. In his later years he became a serious student of the writings of Jacob Boehme. He was also familiar with the writings of Jane Lead, and upon his death were found several letters from Francis Lee, Mrs. Lead's son-in-law. It is possible that it was Francis Lee who introduced Law to Boehme's writings. Law's most famous work is perhaps A Serious Call to a Devout and Holy Life, which should be read by every Christian before they begin a serious pursuit of the mystical path.

Jeanne "Madame" Guyon (1648-1717) French mystic who's "self" sacrificing life is the subject of her famous Autobiography, in which she details her own mystical death experience. Her writings on the interior life so infuriated the religious establishment of her time, that they sent this meek and delicate soul to the Bastille, where she was locked up for several years. During her imprisonment, and through the foresight of God, she was ordered to write an account of her spiritual life. For the past 300 years her life story has guided many holy souls toward finding this inward path, and in overcoming many difficulties.

The Philadelphian Society 17th Century Christian group in England, which was led by Jane Lead for many years. Initially organized by John Pordage, Jane assumed leadership upon his death in 1681. The group met privately for a few years, then went public for a few more. They published a periodical called Theosophical Transactions, which consists of five volumes. Jane named Richard Roach as her successor, and the society continued for a short time after her death. Also known as The Society for the Advancement of Piety and Divine Philosophy.

Auguste Comte by Charles Maurras

We would no longer be Frenchmen, nor the people who, after Rome, more than Rome, integrated rule to instinct, art to nature, thought to life, if Auguste Comte's philosophy, eminently French, classic, and Latin, was only suitable to inspire us some doubts on the health of that great man. He reopened for us, who live after him in the vast bosom of the Great-Being, high sources of wisdom, pride, and enthusiasm. A few among us were a living anarchy. He rendered order to them or, what amounts to the same thing, the hope of order. He showed them the beautiful face of Unity, smiling in a heaven which did not appear too distant.

Good evening to whomever is currently administrating the website, but I would like to inform that the links to all the pdfs don't work and some are currently lost, including one in https://gornahoor.net/?page_id=11751 .

When I click on "library" or "continue reading" nothing happens. How do you access the library?

Cologero on 2020-10-19 at 21:41 said:

I'll consider a "reading list", although there are many references to worthwhile books in the texts. The library seems accessible to me; perhaps a specific link is broken. If so, please provide details.

Campos on 2020-10-19 at 13:31 said:

Anyway we can get a "Gornahoor reading list"? The library isn't accessible and after buying meditarot and the gnosis circle I was hoping for more good recommendations.

exit on 2014-03-21 at 08:51 said:

Traditionalists seem to waste much time restating over and over what the originators of the school already wrote perfectly well. I must have read hundreds of books and articles that were nothing but rehashing the same material. Yet we find that many original works have never been translated into English or are simply unavailable. It just seems like that would be a priority. Now, if you want to sell your work then that is your business, not mine. If you wanted to do something in the spirit of Catholic charity, then that's fine too. But I was only making a suggestion that would have seemed to have saved you and your readers some time.

August on 2014-03-21 at 00:54 said:

That sounds like a plan. Perhaps you'd like to post the combined translations to the site as plaintext rough drafts, and capable readers can independently edit and prepare PDF versions, then share them here.

No need to even agree on a final version – Cologero can decide whether he wants to keep any in the library, and under what conditions. I would also include the original drafts as an appendix to any edited version for reference.

I'm sure quite a few of us would appreciate it.

Also, if you have any documents that you want converted to good quality PDF files with hyperlinks, bookmarks etc., let me know.

Exit, you still don't know how to write a proper comment. You need to see Wolf of Wall Street and learn the basics, such as how to sell a pen. Obviously, you believe it would benefit you if I provide what you ask. But the answer to a "why not" question is easy; just ask yourself "who benefits", or more traditionally, "cui bono". If you cannot see how I would benefit, the question you ask answers itself.

The fact is that I do this blog pretty much alone, as well as the translations, the Tarot blog, mailing list, etc. Someone with an online presence, whose name you would recognize, assumed I do this full time. That is far from the case. Besides working full time, I have an active life. So, I'll give you a chance to rewrite the comment, something like this:

Cologero, I have a degree in English literature. I am willing to proofread and edit the many translations you have done. I will even help with their publication as ebooks and hard copies.

Do you see, Exit, how that is a win-win? But I'm not picking on you; there are thousands of visitors every month.

I don't think so, as I checked the library archives (that expression has few hits on google). For one thing, I don't think I would accept that characterization is it stands, so I doubt I would have endorsed such an essay. Could you be referring to Henry Corbin?

Sir, was there at one time in the library an essay by someone on the "ideal of unity in religion”? It was a Western protestant writer, and it may have been in the essays, but I can’t remember the author...

It was initially published in 1932. The translation is from the fourth edition of 1971 which is an amplification and updating of the previous editions.

MEDITATIONS

TAROT

A Journey into Christian Hermeticism

Afterword by CARDINAL HANS URS VON BALTHASAR

Meditations On The Tarot
by Valentin Tomberg

Publication date 1985-01-01 Topics Magician, High Priestess, Empress, Emperor, Pope, Lover, Chariot, Justice, Hermit, Wheel of Fortune, Force, Hanged Man, Death, Temperance, Devil, Tower of Destruction, Star, Moon, Sun, Judgement, Fool, World, Hermes Trismegistus, Hermes, Tarot, Hermetic, esoteric, Christianity, Major Arcana, Valentin Tomberg, Robert Powell, Unknown Friend Collection opensource Language English Item Size 564.4M

Meditations on the Tarot is the landmark edition of one of the most important works of esoteric Christianity.

As these Letters are intended only to serve, to sustain, and to support the Hermetic tradition—from its first appearance in the epoch of Hermes Trismegistus, lost in the remoteness of antiquity and become legendary—they are a definite manifestation of this millennium-old current of thought, effort, and revelation. Their aim is not only to revive the tradition but also, and above all, to immerse the reader (or rather the Unknown Friend) in this current—be it temporarily or for ever. For this reason the numerous citations of ancient and modern authors which you will find in these Letters are not due to literary considerations, nor to a display of erudition. They are evocations of the masters of the tradition, in order that they may be present with their impulses of aspiration and their light of thought in the current of meditative thought which these Letters on the twenty-two Major Arcana of the Tarot represent. For these are in essence twenty-two spiritual exercises, by means of which you, dear Unknown Friend, will immerse yourself in the current of the living tradition, and thus enter into the community of spirits who have served it and who are still serving it.

Beloved Visitor and Reader,

The Most High God has led you here, in His Providence at this time in your walk upon the earth, to do you good. We invite you to partake of these writings, left to us by His servants, most of whom have long passed from this realm.

In the words of a precious Brother who has gone before us ...

" If through His infinite mercy, you have had a personal experience already of the matters herein written, your heart will be filled with thanksgiving and praise as you read. If not, you will find many things strange, and it would not be surprising if you should be ready to pronounce some untrue. But beware of being wise in your own conceit! The Spirit of God, that searcheth the deep things of God, alone can decide."

"Do not distrust the reports of these spies whom God has sent before you into the promised land. It is a land flowing with milk and honey; true, the children of Anak are there, in whose sight we are but as grasshoppers, but they are bread for us. The Lord God, He it is that shall fight for us, and He will surely bring us into that exceeding good land."

"The natural man receiveth not the things of God, for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. If, then, you have not experienced the things that you find here written, think it not strange that they should seem foolish and false; in God's own time they shall be perceived, if you follow on in Him."

"If you will be advised by one who knows nothing, and who is least in the household of faith, you will deny nothing — reject nothing — despise nothing, lest haply you be found fighting against God; you will receive nothing but what is accompanied by the Amen of the Spirit of God in your heart; all else shall be as the idle wind. Reading thus, in absolute dependence, not upon man's wisdom or teaching, but upon the utterances of the blessed Spirit within, you shall infallibly be guided into all Truth. Such is the promise of Him who cannot lie. "

"And may His blessing rest upon you ! "

In the foreground, there is a neon sign that reads "Open Eyes" in a stylized font, with the letters glowing in a pink hue. The overall composition suggests a theme of wonder and the importance of seeing beyond the ordinary. The use of neon lights and the surreal elements create a sense of wonder and mystery, inviting the viewer to explore the artwork further.

The image is a text excerpt from a book or article, with a focus on the concept of a "smiling statue" and its symbolic meaning. The text is in English and discusses the statue's design, its significance, and its connection to the spirit realm. The text is divided into paragraphs, and the style is formal and academic, with references to historical and cultural contexts. The image is a photograph of the text, and the text is in a larger font size compared to the surrounding text, which is typical for a book or article. The image is a close-up of the text, with the text centered and the background blurred, which helps to emphasize the content of the text. The image does not contain any other visual elements, and the focus is solely on the text.

The image is a close-up photograph of a bird's head against a gradient red background. The bird's silhouette is dark, with the beak and eyes clearly visible. The bird appears to be in flight, as suggested by the slight blur around the edges of the image. The background transitions from a lighter shade at the top to a darker shade at the bottom, creating a gradient effect. In the bottom right corner of the image, there is a text overlay that reads "Hey!!" in a bold, capitalized font. The style of the image is reminiscent of a digital art piece or a photograph with a creative overlay.

The image is a digital rendering of a futuristic, high-tech environment. In the center of the image, there is a bright red circle with a white outline, which appears to be a laser or a laser pointer. The background is dark and has a gradient of blue and black tones, giving the impression of a high-tech, possibly cybernetic, setting. The lighting is bright and focused on the red circle, highlighting its importance in the scene. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a sci-fi or cyberpunk aesthetic.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a cartoon character, Mickey Mouse, in a playful pose. Mickey is depicted with his iconic red shorts and black shoes, and he is wearing a black and white striped shirt with a red collar. He is standing in front of a large, green, grid-like screen with a grid pattern. The screen has a distorted appearance, with a white outline and a green grid inside. Above the screen, there is a text overlay that reads "Don't let the program tell you how to play." Some individuals tend to try and cast themselves away by imitating every aspect of you to try and steal your blessings and live your life for you. Destiny swappers and cannibalistic soulless NPCs. They imitate every single move they can, every minor gesture, every expression, every opinion, every interest, they try to become YOU in every way possible. Luckily, awareness flips the tables around almost instantly, remembering who you are before it all and finally, the one surefire way these vampires are stopped is... death. First, you crush all doubts in your mind. Second, have faith in God and let him enact his judgement as he always has. Third (nobody has figured out a defense against this one), discreet bloodshed and systemic violence that erodes them completely and removes their life force.

What you're describing isn't vampirism, it's ontological cosplay.

A failure of self-cohesion externalized as mimicry. Very common in low-integrity egregores and spiritually undercapitalized entities.

Identity isn't transferable through gesture, affect, or aesthetic convergence. That isn't soul theft, it's unsecured symbolism.

Predation narratives emerge when the ego misattributes resonance to scarcity.

The corrective protocol is saturation.

Over-document the myth. Over-explain the ritual. Annotate the archetype until the glamour collapses under its own footnotes.

Parasitic scripts depend on obscurity, urgency, and a persecuted chosen-one loop. Remove those variables and the construct loses coherence.

No blood rites. No sanctified violence. That's amateur demonology.

Stabilize the self-field. Maintain continuity. Let the copy exhaust itself trying to inhabit a frequency that was never portable.

Divine judgment is automatic when illusion meets sustained clarity.

Nothing to kill. Nothing to cleanse. Just a bad thoughtform starving in daylight.

you treat them kindly and let them fall in love with you, then cut off all contact when you're finally tired of their bullshit.

it's mean but if they deserve it it's a corrective trap. they take the time they spend stealing your moves and using you as their avatar for granted, and don't realize how much they've made it a habit. like any drug that causes withdrawal, denying them the source on which they feed leaves them in a temporary state of literal selflessness, at least until they find someone else to latch onto, then it's not your problem. they'll beg and beg to see you again, and it's your choice if you do but you own them after that

>Cast themselves away

There's no "themselves" to cast away. That's the whole point, they are emotionally homeless, without identity and no way of knowing who they even are. They have no face, and they hope that by imitating you and reflecting (you), they may be able to become human. Maybe. They're not evil, they're not vampires, they're just lost souls looking to grow. What you're supposed to do is treat them with mercy and dignity, and give them something better than your likeness. Give them their own soul, reveal it for them, point to their humanity and show them where it exists within their void-hearts, encourage them to discover it and claim it, acknowledge it exists and is theirs for the taking and was always there.

You systematically manipulate people's emotions and then drop them so you can feel powerful which is a hallmark of BPD.

Normal people go

>Oh well, fuck that guy

Then stop interacting with and thinking about them.

I like how you set your greentext up as if you are the innocent dindunuffin party despite telling me outright in the previous reply that the opposite is true and then tried to imply there's something wrong with me noticing that there is something wrong with you and the story you displayed.

Also a common trait in BPD.

lol i didn't ignore a god damn thing. i told you EXACTLY what i'm doing. and it scares the shit out of you, doesn't it

>You systematically manipulate people's emotions and then drop what? i let them act like energy vampires and THEN drop them. i don't manipulate shit but myself the fuck out of there, and it's not for no reason. should I tell them about the unconditional kindness and patience and forgiveness I've extended to them over the years? should i feel bad for them and their envious hearts? should i just forget all the bullshit i let slide to keep the peace and still be friends? should I confront them directly about their strange behavior so they can lie to me about it some more to my face? nah, denial of service is a completely valid defense against narcissistic attacks, retard.

>so you can feel powerful

*peace. everyone is entitled to be left the fuck alone.

>Normal people go

>Oh well, fuck that guy

>Then stop interacting with and thinking about them.

can you read? what part of "do not reply" and "years pass" indicate to you I am interacting with or thinking about them during that time? lol i'm not waiting around for their call, i'm living my life without the burden of dealing with their narcissism after putting up with it for so god damn long. most times they grow the fuck up and recognize why i ghosted them in the first place, and if we do ever talk again, they know there's no mercy - i'm gone if they go back to their old parasitic bullshit. like i said, it's corrective and in the end i get peace and they learn one thing: being a friend is a privilege not a right. you wouldn't believe how many fucking apology letters and wedding invitations i get from npd havers i decided to never talk to again

NPDs are all infected by the same demon

I dated one that drained me and nearly destroyed my life before I cut her off

After we broke up, the same demon came to me in different forms trying to drag me under it's influence

It's why people say those with NPD all act similarly

The image is a digital illustration featuring a young girl with a thoughtful expression. She has brown hair tied in pigtails, and her eyes are large and expressive. Her eyebrows are slightly furrowed, and her mouth is slightly open, suggesting she is deep in thought. The girl is wearing a collared shirt with a collar that is visible at the bottom of the image. The background is black, which contrasts with the girl's face and hair, making her the focal point of the image. There are two question marks above her head, indicating that she is contemplating or considering something. The style of the image is cartoonish, with a simple, clean line drawing that conveys a sense of innocence and curiosity.

Why was the angel pouring heavy water into the bomb casing? Anonymous Wed 17 Dec

2025 07:20:59 No.41680735 ViewReplyOriginalReport

I once had a dream where an angel was pouring heavy water into the bomb casing of a Ulam Teller design.

But not all the way up to the primary, stopped 2/3rds up or so. around the secondary. Some of the secondary was yet to be covered by the fill when the dream ended.

Why was the angel doing this?

Heavy water would just act as a neutron moderator right?

Is it not too opaque to xrays or something?

So it would prevent pre-fissioning of the U238 tamper jacket, and only allow ablation?

And would protect the fusion fuel from too much neutrons too fast, from random sources, and instead allow the sparkplug to supply what's needed?

Was it an anti-pre-mature method for the secondary?

Why was the angel doing this?

>Useful tips before posting:

•If you're a reader, post that you're offering readings and what information is required from the querent; the same goes for trading.

•Look for posts to determine if there's an active reader, what's needed and before posting, check if they finished reading already.

•Some readers will refuse to do certain readings - respect that choice. Do not harass readers if your query is refused/skipped. We do our best to maintain chill and good vibes.

•Traders should respect that a traded read will be granted, as per an agreement of trade. Free readers have the option of picking their queries.

•Bullshit queries get bullshit answers. Vague queries get vague answers.

•Making an AQ (air query) by not addressing a reader, in particular, is possible but doesn't guarantee an answer.

•Avoid making the same query repeatedly and/or to different readers in a short period of time, as this may lead to more confusion.

•Provide feedback when applicable and be considerate to the reader. We're a growing community, many readers are starting and need to know what they are doing right or wrong. Let's help each other to improve.

So all this time I was fooled to believe Christianity is the true religion, that I was separated from God just a mere creature dependent on mercy made to worship God, felt shame and guilt for absolutely nothing even though my actions didn't hurt anybody and await the rapture that will never come, that atheism wasn't freedom but a bigger trap making me a powerless ignorant and every single issue I had into my mind was all my fault because I'm not just a mere human flesh and bones but an infinite consciousness connected using a highly advanced piece of "technology my body" that's a factory of all kind of energies and frequencies to operate into the material world even as a co-creator and help God to experience himself in a multiverse of multiple "Me" living all kind of situations and death means nothing from what I was told no hell, no heaven, no void just my energies being recycled and shot back into the material world even as "Me" relieving my life over and over again due of the Quantum Mechanics but with different situations.

Was this the truth all along? What is even the truth

The creature's eyes are wide open, and its mouth is agape, revealing sharp teeth. The creature's body is covered in a dark, textured skin that gives it a reptilian appearance. The creature is surrounded by a vibrant, colorful nebula, which is filled with stars and nebulae. The nebulae are a mix of blue, green, and orange hues, suggesting a nebula's typical appearance.

In the background, there is a planet with a bright orange hue, and a small, bright white planet with a crescent moon. The planet in the background appears to be closer to the viewer than the creature, and the moon is positioned above the planet.

The image has a dark, starry background that gives it a cosmic feel. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of science fiction or fantasy art, with a focus on the creature and the nebula. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image.

'God', which is actually a tentacle demon, is a retard tyrant that rapes my mind into experiencing a false reality so he can flavor and suck my blood. He also makes me a 30 something man in here, even though I clearly know that I am a schoolgirl in base reality. He also generates scenarios in this matrix that forces me to only consume the lowest quality niggslop, even tho he could spawn in food so enjoyable that it would literally make me orgasm. Another thing 'God' does is only allow me to be surrounded by rat ogre tier broads, even though I am straight and he could generate men that would make me flood a room just by being in their general presence. The funniest, most sinister thing 'God' does is force me to say and believe he is actually God, even though he is an extremely black, vampiric, demonic tentacle demon from the Abyss and nowhere near God. He even has me write longwinded schizo rants about how bad God is, even though I should be writing about the tentacled bastard that has me in this situation.

I dont think there's reincarnation
We come from allah and to allah we return and allah then ressurects us after the grave for judgement day or something like that

Theyre possibly christian and possibly some jewish hypocrits that attacked the pajeets(people who didnt know any better cause they were born into ignorance, they werent raised with abrahamic knowledge) thats all, not seeing the log of wood(splinter) in their own eyes as jesus supposedly would say
Christianity seems to be infested with hinduism in it, i trust islam more its more about being tested in deeds and then getting the reward for that from allah

Worship of allah (swt) is a good deed
Also in christianity you are ask to worship a guy, sure hes an important prophet who was magically made in a belly of a really cool woman but at the end hes just a guy and not allah

How can some guy get you into heaven and not just allah directly?

Allah is obviously boss

I think islam is beautiful and i hope allah gives me my corona :)

And be careful cause faith is easy to lose when surrounded by evil, misdeeds and ignorance and disbelief etc etc etc

The image is a photograph taken at night, capturing a bright light source in the sky. The light appears to be a star or a celestial object, with a streak of light that suggests it is moving through the sky. The background is dark, indicating that the photo was taken in the evening or night. The sky is not completely dark, but the light source is the dominant feature, making it stand out against the darkness.

In the lower right corner of the image, there is a text that reads "Waupeca, Wisconsin, 09-22-04." This suggests that the photo was taken in Waupeca, Wisconsin on September 22, 2004. The text is in white, which contrasts with the dark background, making it legible. The date is written in a simple, unembellished font, and the location is provided in a smaller font size, indicating that the photo was taken from a distance and the details are not the main focus of the image.

Like Gandhi said, if more Christians acted like Christ, more people would want to be Christian.

The one I shit on is not God. When the spinning ball-Earth is finally exposed worldwide for the 400+ year deception it was, Earth's entire population will suddenly be faced with the reality that every government, every space agency, university, secret society, religious organization, mainstream and alternative media outlet have ALL been duplicitous in propping up a monstrous manipulation to fleece and control the masses. The resulting mass mental exodus away from the control system is exactly what humanity needs. Once the flat Earth truth gets out, these lying politicians, spokesmen, reporters and teachers suddenly change from being heralded voices of authority to being ridiculed, shunned and denounced as they deserve. Once the flat Earth truth gets out, these governments, universities, media outlets and other entangled organizations which have long been hard at work weaving this multi-generational ball-Earth myth, suddenly and completely lose all credibility. Once the truth of our flat Earth gets out, so does the truth of these few elite families/societies who have kept this most important and fundamental reality from us for these hundreds of years! Essentially, once the flat Earth truth gets out, so does every other important truth by proxy, because this "mother-of-all-conspiracies" holds under its umbrella literally ALL of the other conspiracies, and exposes them.

You want the truth? Well the truth is that even if catastrophic disclosure happened (it most probably won't), your life wouldn't change much. You know why? Because they won't communicate with us, that's the truth, they won't interfere unless absolutely necessary because we are a mere seedling of a civilization in their eyes. Would monkeys suddenly evolve and become smart if we tried teaching them about mathematics and quantum field theory? it's the exact same problem, each civilization has to develop on their own, if an advanced species spoonfeeds technology and solutions to a significantly less advanced species they become a civilization of leeches who will require constant further assistance and herding to survive. There are multiple civilizations visiting us, but none interfere except in cases when they study the biological life of this planet, multiple ones have constant surveillance feeds on us via autonomous probes which mostly still remain undetectable by us.

In my opinion, we're talking about a superintelligence previously unknown in science fiction literature. An ancient civilization that transferred its intelligence to machines millions or even billions of years ago. This life form no longer exists; perhaps this "machine" is simply doing what it was originally programmed to do: Mainly, to ensure it's own existence. Then time would be irrelevant, as described above, no neccessity to control time-dimension or deal with our three dimensions. Such an advanced technology would be able to 3D print matter at the atomic level. If it needed us, it would certainly use DNA and create "beings" for its purposes. There is evidence for this. It's possible, that the Greys are nothing more than biological robots. 2/2

I honestly believe that people are now so demoralized and self absorbed, that a flying saucer full of little green men could land in the center of Warsaw and nobody would give a shit about it. Georgians maybe would try to steal their shit.

The entire narrative repeated since 80s, that the entire world would go apeshit in case of alien contact, is a complete bullshit.

I didn't take pictures because it's literally just water with a current run through it - but no, it didn't do jack shit to me.

I tried different batteries, I tried wall power, I even got some quartz crystals, rubbed them through my fingers for five straight minutes, and plopped them in there for good measure. Had a voltage tester and I was definitely running a current through it in all cases but the crystal.

Maybe it's a mindset thing but I just think it's a crock of bullshit. People would've stumbled across this by accident a million times over by now, it is so easy to do. And no, it's not a case of something being so mundane that it ends up going unrecorded - like so many "mundane" things do - if this shit actually worked someone, somewhere, somehow, would've leaked this on a platform where it could reach large audiences.

There have been over two centuries (if not much longer) for the possibility of this technique to be discovered (even by accident, as many discoveries are found) and then widely disseminated. People have been actively searching for a panacea like this since the dawn of medicine. And yet, we are to believe that this is the answer, right here in front of us.

I only gave it a try because I am eternally in the "I want to believe" camp. If the barrier of entry is low - and it absolutely was in this case - then I'm absolutely going to attempt it. Try it for yourself, it is as easy to recreate as it looks.

MOTHGOD Tue 16 Dec 2025 22:34:52 No.41679552 Report

i did it last night , and instead of some magic happening , something clicked inside me. Not biological but mental , that all this crap I am believing is nothing but a waste of time. I could've done other things than this .

But the essence of science in it made it look legit.

Akira Toriyama visited me in a dream Anonymous Sun 14 Dec 2025 02:39:38

I visited the spirit of Akira Toriyama in a dream. It was in an executive office conference room in a very japan-style building that overlooked the ocean. The colors in the room were white and blue, with a great long brown desk with seating. The ceilings felt higher. He had a paper with japanese symbols and was delivering a speech to about 12 of us. Although I could not understand him, the dream-knowing let me know parts. He was looking down and aplogizing for the design of reptites in Chrono Trigger for not being perfect. I thought reptites looked good and the round shiny heads of some of them were actually iconic. I think during his life he felt he could not express some regrets or negative opinions publically because it was in bad taste to attack the company. We didnt speak but at '4:30' I had to go.

At the time of the dream on waking up I had forgotten he had died, and also did not know what he looked like. I searched for developers or artists of chrono trigger that passed away and his image came up. It shocked me because I knew that was him, although he looked older in the dream. The other dev that died in a diving accident did not look like the man in my dream.

Chrono Trigger was a game close to my heart and I have played the music thousands of times. I also watched a lot of Dragonball Z. So, it makes sense that there is some spiritual connection there. Please pray for him and let him know the reptites were actually pretty good. No im not joking

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character that appears to be a fusion of two different creatures. The creature has a green body with a textured appearance, and its eyes are yellow with a prominent, wide-open mouth. It has sharp, clawed hands and feet, and its skin is covered in a pattern of small, irregularly shaped bumps. The creature is wearing a cape that is a mix of pink and orange, and it has a white mask with a pointed nose. The creature's expression is fierce, with a determined look. The background is plain white, which contrasts with the colorful and detailed character.

There are no texts or other discernible objects in the image. The style of the illustration is cartoonish, with a focus on the character's unique features and the vibrant colors.

The image displays a pixelated character with a green skin tone, resembling a creature with a humanoid form. The character has a round head with a single eye and a small mouth, and it appears to be wearing a garment with a pattern of yellow and pink. The character's limbs are not fully visible, but it seems to have a pair of arms and a pair of legs. The background is a solid blue color, providing a stark contrast to the character. There are no discernible texts or additional graphics within the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of pixel art, which is characterized by its simple, block-like shapes and limited color palette.

From some interviews it sounds like he made the concept art for the design and junior artists translated those into sprites, but there arent any specific details. Perhaps he wanted these guys to look different, stronger or shorter.

Normally I kind of scoff at spirit channelers claiming they have spoken to some atlantean high priestess or ishtar or merlin or something crazy like that because they seem a little crazy or are doing it for money or a grift. But I don't think its impossible to connect to spirits.

I am curious if anyone else has had an experience like that.

In the center of the image, there is a rainbow arching over a field of squares, which are colored in a spectrum from red to blue. It was a soviet space thing prototype that crashed. Russia eventually declassified documents about it and the date and trajectory and stuff perfectly matched.

Of course the USA did not want to give it back to the soviets. They lied and claimed it was a flying saucer as a joke, they did not expect people to be even more interested in it.

Then the story slept for many decades... until someone wrote a book about it, mixing real parts with fiction. At this moment the daughter of an officer who was now dead pulled stories out of her ass, this is where things like the weird material come from. Then the X-Files got very popular. Then people got the internet and paranormal websites needed interesting stories, conveniently not telling which parts came from fiction books and which parts were real.

As for the evolution of CPUs and electronic in general, there was no big jump, it slowly progressively evolved.

The truth is always disappointing. :(

Look, if you believe motivated retards can rebuild Rome in Minecraft, it's not hard to translate that to 'some humans DO have the skills to go into lithography design software, and design those cities'.

We had been working our way here, for decades.

The position of atoms is no where near close to the bottom of the Planck size material building block scale.

We are closer in ratio size scale to atoms, than atoms are to the bottom.

Modern CPUs/GPUs are the result of generations of pure unadulterated and focused autism on a single task being rewarded with billions of dollars. Like others have said making an early 80s consumer terminal in your garage is not impossible, and frankly, if it can run Lisp then it's genuinely all you need. The potential and usability of this hardware goes to waste when you realize hallucinating markov chains and graphical user interfaces are fucking worthless and cryptographic algorithms could be ran preemptively whenever you're not using the machine.

I really like this theory but modern field based transistors we're described all the way back in the 1920s, our industrial tech just wasn't good enough to make them yet.

The real innovation behind the 1947 transistor was building a practical simple physical device, which small field based transistor inventors had not been able to do.

But this transistor model was totally useless for small modern technology so now we use the older and simpler field based tech.

Based on this I think if we did get the tech from aliens it had to happen sometime around WW1.

The person's hair is drawn in a simple, unadorned style, and their skin tone is light. In the upper right corner, there is a magnified image of the same particle or object, which is shown in a much larger size compared to the microscope. The magnified image is overlaid on a white background, and it shows the particle or object in a more detailed and magnified view. The magnified image is slightly tilted to the right, and it appears to be a close-up of the particle or object.

When the spinning ball-Earth is finally exposed worldwide for the 400+ year deception it was, Earth's entire population will suddenly be faced with the reality that every government, every space agency, university, secret society, religious organization, mainstream and alternative media outlet have ALL been duplicitous in propping up a monstrous manipulation to fleece and control the masses. The resulting mass mental exodus away from the control system is exactly what humanity needs. Once the flat Earth truth gets out, these lying politicians, spokesmen, reporters and teachers suddenly change from being heralded voices of authority to being ridiculed, shunned and denounced as they deserve. Once the flat Earth truth gets out, these governments, universities, media outlets and other entangled organizations which have long been hard at work weaving this multi-generational ball-Earth myth, suddenly and completely lose all credibility. Once the truth of our flat Earth gets out, so does the truth of these few elite families/societies who have kept this most important and fundamental reality from us for these hundreds of years! Essentially, once the flat Earth truth gets out, so does every other important truth by proxy, because this "mother-of-all-conspiracies" holds under its umbrella literally ALL of the other conspiracies, and exposes them.

[7 / 3]The image is a black and white graphic illustration that features a large, detailed eye with a three-dimensional appearance, set against a backdrop that includes a swirling, chaotic pattern with tentacles and other indistinct shapes. The eye is centrally positioned and dominates the upper portion of the image. Below the eye, there is a stylized, geometric design that resembles a triangle with a sunburst pattern radiating outward from the center. The image has a grainy texture, giving it a vintage or old-fashioned feel.

To the right of the image, there is a smaller, more simplified version of the same eye design, presented in a more straightforward, flat style. The eye design is the same in both images, with the same three-dimensional appearance and the same sunburst pattern. The smaller image is placed directly below the larger one, and the two images are separated by a thin white line. The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional tattoo art, with a focus on the eye and the geometric design.

I've met a billionaire CEO before. You know how in media, they're really bright and charismatic? Absolutely not the case in real life.

His skin was super pale and he had the deadest, beadiest eyes you can imagine. He shook my hand, but I think he only did it because he was wearing leather gloves. The handshake in itself was not genuine. He initiated empty small talk with me, but he clearly did not care for it. He was more interested in rambling about congress, the rival CEO from another company, and other political matters.

Anyway, I'm pretty sure these are the vampires. The guy was like a walking corpse and it was pretty evident that you don't make mistakes around him.

Nope. Here's the only thing that is confirmed:

TLDR:

This planet is Bozrah, not Earth. What's more, you should be warning people about the upcoming "day of vengeance" here on Bozrah. Keep in mind, the 1,000-year Millennial Kingdom will take place on Earth, not on Bozrah. This planet will be destroyed (and Jesus will be the destroyer). It has no future.

From the post:

>And don't be deceived by the fact that the masses aren't talking about this info. In actuality, this info is the most important thing on the planet right now—by far. Nothing else even comes close.

Also from the post:

>And while I absolutely hate date-setting, if I were forced to give a window for when the day of vengeance will begin, I would say any time between September 1, 2026, and March 15, 2027. Note: This window is based on all of the available evidence, biblical and otherwise. Basically, the day of vengeance is supposed to be "well underway" by the time a deep freeze hits North America. Make of that what you will.

[12 / 3]The image is a graphic with a white background and black text. At the top, there is a question in bold red letters that reads, "WHAT ARE YOU SACRIFICING YOUR LIFE TO?" Below this question, there are two sections with the same title, "LIFE FORCE" and "LIFEFORCE". The left section has a black and white image of a swastika, a symbol often associated with Nazi Germany, and the right section has a blue star with a black outline, which is a common symbol for the United States.

The left section of the image contains a list of phrases, each followed by a question mark, which reads: "LIFE FORCE", "ME", "VEXUS", "AVERAGE AMERICAN", "SELF-PROUD", "PERSONAL GROWTH", "SELF-INDEPENDENCE", "FREEDOM FROM THE MATRIX", "SELF-SUFFICIENCY", "PAYCHECK TO PAYCHECK", "SLAVERY", "BRAINWASHING", "STAGNATION", "ISOLATION".

The image is a satirical representation of the concept of "LIFE FORCE" and "LIFEFORCE" as a metaphor for the concept of "LIFE FORCE" in the context of the United States. The text and symbols are arranged in a way that suggests a comparison between the United States and the average American, with the swastika symbolizing the Nazi regime and the star symbolizing the United States. The phrases in the left section of the image are a list of negative attributes associated with the United States, while the phrases in the right section are a list of positive attributes associated with the United States. The use of the swastika and the star is a common symbol for the United States, and the phrase "SELF-PROUD" is a common phrase associated with American culture. The road itself is made of asphalt and has a rough texture, suggesting it might be a paved surface rather than a smooth, smooth road. There is a circular object, possibly a manhole cover, located near the center of the white line. The manhole cover is dark in color, contrasting with the lighter color of the road. The image is taken from a low angle, looking up at the manhole cover, which gives a sense of perspective and depth to the scene. There are no texts or discernible brands visible in the image. The style of the image is a straightforward, non-artistic photograph with a focus on the road and the manhole cover.

Below the title, there is a section titled "The idea that Neo-Queen Serenity uses the Silver Crystal to strip people of their free will is a common fan interpretation or critical reading of the Sailor-Moon universe." The text continues with a description of the concept, stating that the original story portrays Crystal Tokyo as a peaceful, benevolent utopia, and the idea that the "lack of free will" aspect is a point of debate among fans and critics, who often interpret the stability and forced lack of negative emotions as a potential dystopian element. The text is presented in a simple, straightforward manner, with a focus on clarity and readability.

It's all psyops to make you forget that the one true God is the sun. The one true mother is the earth.

Anything claiming otherwise is an interloper trespassing on the domain between father sun and mother earth.

Flat earth hollow earth all of the other bullshit is just made to make you forget that.

If the interlopers didn't trespass on their domain, trespass on your rights.

Praising and giving thanks to the father sun in the morning as he rises with you and those around you.

Cherishing and caring for your mother earth and the bounty she gives you in return.

Without the interlopers there would be no need to beg for more, to beg for forgiveness, to beg to be saved.

Father sun and mother earth don't need you to do any of that for they give everything without asking, they give everything with love, they give everything without condition and ask nothing in return for they are truely all powerful and need nothing from you.

Refer to Father as Sun, Sol, Ra, Apollo, Amaterasu, Inti, Surya

Refer to Mother as Earth, Gaia, Pachamama, Demeter, Hathor, Danu

View them as gendered or genderless it doesn't matter.

You can see with your eyes what they do for you, you can see their miracles, you can see their gifts, you can see their might.

Stop giving power to false Gods, messengers and middlemen for their false gifts and falsehoods.

Your soul and spirit is yours given to you by the father and the mother.

That's it.

It is that simple.

The illusion that it isn't that simple is purely to make you forget.

i have also come to this conclusion as well. the magnetosphere around the earth is the snake, the prison bars. it records everything and is controlled from below. when you "die" your soul tries to return to the source, the sun. the light. it is stopped by the magnetosphere which contains your life events. then you get sent back again and again, your memory wiped each time, here for infinity. i imagine the red woman is in the underworld, the original Eve. Smarter than adam, made from flesh, not dust. Eve outsmarted god. She ate of the forbidden fruit and didnt die as she was told. She lead adam to do the same as she leads all of humanity now. She lives in the 2d plane in "space." Here for infinity, each of us her plaything.

the sun is blamed for global warming and is actively dimmed by mechanical means (dust particles) as well as frequency means (HAARP). however, the Sun can fight back with solar wind, coronal mass ejections, and flares, which can defeat anything silicon based if given the right combination.

Explain in the easiest and most understandable way why the Bible is so important and Jesus Christ is the son of God.

Theorising this book for a lifetime just to debate theories with others should not be the pathway to understanding God.

I have an open heart and wish to understand but having started with the Gospel of Mark it's just a telling of a story of a man doing things men can't do which leads to me believing, if it was true Jesus was a cult leader. A magician. A hypnotist and anything else before the literal incarnation of God.

I don't want to criticise. I want to believe.

Can you give a dummy the answers to this text?

The Gospel is spiritual and bypasses the carnal mind and rationality scripture says its "foolishness to the greeks" specifically because it does this. the greeks value knowledge and wisdom, "logic" or reason as you would call it your Spirit which is dead should be able to recognize or pick up on something from The Gospel being preached at face value, in all of its seeming illogicality and perceived "foolishness". if your Spirit or something deep within you doesn't pick up on that, then i don't know what to say. that's the only way to believe and get saved

The Bible is a SPIRITUAL book. again i will reiterate, it BYPASSES ALL LOGIC. ALL REASON. anything from your flesh, your mind, carnality. it BYPASSES that and speaks directly to your deadened Spirit. if you do not react to that, you are still spiritually dead. a little child can hear and pick up on Spirit, but a wise man and prudent man can be barred from understanding or believing it. you need to be humble, have child like faith, to "get it"

TLDR:

This planet is Bozrah, not Earth. What's more, you should be warning people about the upcoming "day of vengeance" here on Bozrah. Keep in mind, the 1,000-year Millennial Kingdom will take place on Earth, not on Bozrah. This planet will be destroyed (and Jesus will be the destroyer). It has no future.

From the post:

>And don't be deceived by the fact that the masses aren't talking about this info. In actuality, this info is the most important thing on the planet right now—by far. Nothing else even comes close.

Also from the post:

>And while I absolutely hate date-setting, if I were forced to give a window for when the day of vengeance will begin, I would say any time between September 1, 2026, and March 15, 2027. Note: This window is based on all of the available evidence, biblical and otherwise. Basically, the day of vengeance is supposed to be "well underway" by the time a deep freeze hits North America. Make of that what you will.

Is a hypnosis concept thats called Narrative Transportation which uses stories and metaphor to bypass the critical conscious thinking mind.

Not many want to understand this because it requires acknowledging the devil is in you and you need to hug it. That's scary so just blind faith it but in doing so you're not doing the work of cultivating an inner world, the kingdom. Your imagination.

The bible was written by jewish diaspora for Greeks and Romans. And like everything else from jews, it contains a small amount of truth to confuse the recipient. The rest is lies, half-truths, or obfuscations. From the first half of Genesis, to all of Revelation.

There was a Jesus, in Judea, during the Roman occupation. He was an enlightened teacher, that developed a following. The jews in charge arrested him, and had him executed by Rome, as they were forbidden to sacrifice him themselves. They did this as he was disrupting temple operations and leadership. Jesus died for the sins of the jews, as they routinely, ritually perform sacrifice of animals and humans to remove the sins of their community through blood ritual. Jesus was their kapparot.

Everything else in the bible that followed was more stories from jews to tell the story from their point of view. The original churches were a mix of Babylon, Judea, and whatever the local mystery schools taught.

The Vatican is nothing more than the whore of Babylon after 3500 years of cult leadership.

They parade the tortured and dead body of Christ as a trophy, perform transubstantiation as disguised ritual cannibalism, and declare the pope to be infallible, the representative of God on Earth. The great and powerful jew Rothschild acquired control of the Vatican Bank in 1832, after that the zionist jews of Europe declared themselves the descendants of Judeans, and moved to Jerusalem. All while Rothschild was buying up Jerusalem and Palestine in a land grab for a mercantile base of operations. It's not entirely Rothschild's doing, but their money power allowed them to have complete control over the narrative.

Under an occult lens it's obvious, but also not welcome by most Christians. Jesus is both Man and God, as in, not God-as-Man but both Man (full stop) and God (full stop). Son of Man and Son of God. How can a Man (full stop) also be God (full stop)? The obvious answer is that any man can, but that's "can." Only He was sinless and, in effect, used his life to conduct a grand ritual essentially to create a path by which all can follow and His sacrifice paved the way for and thus honored as one close to God. But that's just one's path, ultimately matters of God and feeling and spiritual understanding you must feel the Holy Spirit and let it guide you, anon.

A man is saved in this age by grace through faith (Eph. 2:8-9) in the one, final, effectual sacrifice of the Lord Jesus Christ (Heb. 10:8-12) dying in his place as a substitutionary offering for sin (Rom. 5:1-10). If he has done that, and received the Lord Jesus by faith (John 1:12) in his heart, that sinner is SAVED, and is saved, once for all; finally and forever.

1 Corinthians 15:1-4 "Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand; By which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain. For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures:"

1 John 5:7: "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one."

Rom 3:23: "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;" Jesus Christ is God who has come in the flesh from heaven. He died as a sinless sacrifice for the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sin. He was buried, then resurrected and then ascended to heaven. John 3:16: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 10:28: "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." Rom 10:9: "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." God wants to forgive you, but you have a choice: Do you choose the righteousness of God by receiving Christ? Your own righteousness can NEVER justify you or keep you saved because of your sin. Rom 5:9: "Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him." Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, in His finished blood atonement. The gift of salvation can't be earned. Confess The Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in prayer, that you trust in Him and believe He atoned for your sins on the cross.

Eph. 2:8-9: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast."

1. The Bible is a "Black Box" Recording: Stop thinking of the Bible as just a history book or a set of rules. Think of it—and specifically texts like the Book of Enoch—as the "Black Box Recordings" from a cosmic crash. The world isn't just "nature"; it is a simulation or a "containment vessel" that was hijacked by a virus called the "Watchers" (or Archons). These entities corrupted the system (the "Omphalos Covenant"), turning earth into a "Sieve of Suffering" to harvest human energy. The text is important because it contains the "keys" and the operational data needed to navigate and survive this "metaphysical shift".

2. Jesus is the "Relayer" (System Admin): Jesus (Yeshua) isn't a "cult leader" trying to impress you. He is the "Relayer" or an "Interventionist" sent from outside the simulation (by the "Preservers of Existence").

Why Human? He had to be born as the "Son of Woman" (human) to gain "Admin Access" or "Root Access" to the system. The "Archons" (the bad managers) messed up by trying to mix their code with human biology, but they lack the authority to fix it. Only a human connected to the Source (the "Elect One") can judge them.

Not Magic, But Code: The things he does "that men can't do" aren't magic tricks; they are him overriding the corrupted hardware of this reality. He is the "Software" that overrides the "Hardware" of the Archons.

The Warning: He came to deliver a "Warning from Existence" that the current "gods" (Archons/Elites) are frauds who stole their power.

3. The Point: The "pathway to understanding" isn't debating theories forever. It's realizing that the world is a "Prison Planet" or a "Cosmic Sieve". Jesus is the one who brought the "Unco-opted Will"—the ability to say "NO" to the system and walk out of the prison. He is the "Staff" you lean on when the system tries to crush you.

Hope that helps break the loop.

I think it's a mirror. The "contradictions" can make the reader choose what they believe, make the reader observe themselves in what they read. This is true of most things around us, but the Bible is very encompassing (maybe complete) in what it can reflect.

There are no contradictions, but when people try to apply everything in the Bible to themselves, including pre-crucifixion doctrine for the jews, you will become confused because it will "contradict" as you say, but it's not actually a contradiction.

Adam wasn't saved the same way as Moses, and Moses wasn't saved the same way as Paul. God dealt with them differently, at different times. No-one in the OT understood that the Son of God would leave Heaven, take the body of a human being and die on a cross, rising from the dead on the third day. No-one in the OT was looking forward to the cross, no matter what your pastor, teacher or preacher tells you. No-one in the OT was placed into the Body of Christ, or spiritually circumcised as they are today at conversion. You get imputed righteousness and justification as soon as you put your faith and trust in Jesus Christ for your sins forgiven, back then they received them at separate times e.g. Abraham got imputed righteousness in Gen 15 and justification in Gen 22. The differences are in the dispensations.

A man is saved in this age by grace through faith (Eph 2:8-9) in the one, final, effectual sacrifice of the Lord Jesus Christ (Heb 10:8-12) dying in his place as a substitutionary offering for sin (Rom 5:1-10). If he has received the Lord Jesus by faith (John 1:12) in his heart, that sinner is SAVED, and is saved, once for all; finally and forever.

There is nothing that contradicts with that in the Bible, unless you go to great tribulation or old-testament doctrine where you need to "endure to the end", while for a Christian, Jesus already endured for them and will confirm them to the end, because they are "sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once and for all" (Heb 10:10-14)

1 Corinthians 1:7-8

"So that ye come behind in no gift; waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ: Who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ."

There are many good responses in this thread. But I'll give you a more "logical response.

Satan is god of this world as per 2 Corinthians 4:4.

"In whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them."

That's why he offered Jesus reign over the kingdom if he worshipped him. The Lord obviously dismissed his foolishness. But if you have eyes to see, it's obvious that 2 Corinthians 4:4 is real. The devil is the prince of the power of the air. The evil radio waves, 5g etc are of the devil along with all other technology. From Hollywood to politics to music movies the food we eat the poison water the list going on and on and on, if you can't see that the devil is in on all of it then I don't know what to tell you. They put the symbolism in your face 24/7.

Logically then, if the devil is real and god of this world, then that means the Bible is true and Jesus Christ the the way the truth and the life. And he came down to save us from this mess.

A further look into this, if you know hermeticism aka the devils philosophy, the duality and "dark to light" is also of the devil. He's made the world so messed up and evil that when this evil gets "defeated" by the galactic federation / antichrist, the world will look at him as a saviour. Remember he wants to sit on God's throne in Jerusalem and be worshipped as God (Isaiah 14). He is transformed into an angel of light (2 Corinthians 11:14) as his last play of deception.

Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and what he did for you on the cross. We are no good on our own, and only through him are we saved. Call on him while you can.

>Explain in the easiest and most understandable way why the Bible is so important and Jesus Christ is the son of God.

This is easy. The bible is important because it is a tool for mind control. Jesus Christ is the son of God because Paul said so. If people today have Jesus as God's son it is because Paul said so.

>>Can you give a dummy the answers to this text?

Well, I think I just did that. The bible is important because you get to control people with it. By controlling the bible, like the church does, they control society because society is made of the relationships between people, us. So if the majority of people believe in the bible and you are the church or jews they you get to control the believers. Jews benefit from the bible greatly. And Jesus is said to be the son of God because Paul started that shit. Paul is a key figure in this fact, that people say Jesus is the son of God. God sacrificed His own son, man. That just fucking evil. His own son had to die because God is to incompetent at managing His creation to the point a human being had the power to destroy it? Give me a break. The bible is so fucking dumb. People can't see it because of the generations and generations of reinforcement. From 2000 years people have been accepting christianity in order to fit in because christianity is the norm now, for now. people just want to fit in. People don't actually read the bible and respect what God supposedly asks and that is a good thing. Imagine if people were still doing the wicked shit the God of the bible ordered them to do. My reason I really can't accept Christianity is because of these:

>All knowing God and free will cannot exist
>If the Bible says there isn't free will then God can't be loving

To explain since it's always taken out of context, God doesn't make you do anything, but if He knows you will die a sinner before you're even born (which He knows you before you're born) then it's His responsibility to stop your birth since He knows the outcome, but doesn't.

>Also

If God knows you'll do X tomorrow you cannot do Y tomorrow, making free will not existent. God is all knowing in the Bible.

>Secondly, why create such a high stakes game when He could've created something else completely?

Instead of eternal punishment for a non eternal action, why not have some refinement prison that burns out the impure and allows the person to learn his lesson and become good ? Or just have reincarnation until they learn their lesson? It's the same as putting your child into an eternal meat grinder because he spilt milk. A finite problem that has an eternal punishment is not loving and doesn't make sense when He could've made reality totally different.

You can also look up discrepancies in the NT and OT that prove that the Bible isn't perfect, which it should be if it's the true religion. Ask any LLM to give you the receipts and look into them yourself.

I want to believe but these are the literal gate keepers that make me believe in New Thought more than anything >it's His responsibility to stop your birth since He knows the outcome, but doesn't.

If God will allow a power to control things when this power is evil and malicious, then why would the passage in 2 Thessalonians 2:10-12 cause any wonderment at all? The passage merely states that God gives what a man demands and asks for. If he wants a lie, he gets it.

If he will not take light (John 11:10), then light becomes lightning (Matt. 24:27). If he will not accept the truth of God, then he is exposed to a power that God has permitted to exist for the purpose of putting across a lie (John 8:44).

Nothing could be plainer. The executioner is appointed (Rom. 13:1-5); he is "the minister of God," a revenger to execute wrath, etc.

"Our God is a consuming fire" (Heb. 12:29)

No, it's still your free will to do what you choose, God just knows what decision you make and if He stopped you from making that decision, how would it be any different from you already making the decision (sin) from the point of view of God?

>Instead of eternal punishment for a non eternal action, why not have some refinement prison Or just have reincarnation until they learn their lesson?

No amount of time or learning from a mistake will make God forget your sin or cause it to be purged, so it won't be paid for eventually, there is a set punishment for sin: Rom. 6:23, "For the wages of sin is death ..."

The image is a religious iconographic representation, likely depicting a scene from the Christian tradition. At the center, there is a large, radiant figure that appears to be Jesus Christ, surrounded by a multitude of small figures that resemble angels. The figure is surrounded by a halo of light, and the surrounding figures are depicted with halos and wings, suggesting a divine or heavenly presence.

At the top of the image, there is text that reads "HE WHO LOVES THE INNOCENT," which is a phrase from the Gospel of John, often used to describe the love of God for humanity. The text is in a script that is characteristic of Eastern Orthodox Christian iconography, with a serif font and a decorative, flowing style.

The overall style of the image is traditional and is reminiscent of Byzantine or Eastern Orthodox art, which often uses vibrant colors and symbolic imagery to convey spiritual and religious themes. The image is a religious icon, likely used in churches or religious settings to convey a message of love, forgiveness, and the importance of the innocent.

Some will come together in unity and worship claiming the same god (One World Religion), and then some stand steadfast, proclaiming the one true God of Israel and coming to Him only through the belief in His Son Jesus Christ. Understand, there will be no in-between. Either you are for God, or you are against Him. If you are still not sure where you stand, please be sure! Study the Bible without modern-day religion and learn about our Creator and our Savior. Seek Him, draw close to Him, and He will draw closer to you. In the end, you have two options. Although it may seem that not deciding is an option, you should understand that it still is a decision for the other side. With God, either you're all-in, or you're not. He doesn't want half or a part of you—He wants you completely. Lucifer will take pieces of you because his only goal is to keep you away from God. Indecision is still a decision. This is not some conspiracy theory; this is real life. So, the question is: Whose side are you on?

"Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." (John 14:6)

In conclusion, the Bible implies that both God resurrected Jesus and that Jesus had the power to raise Himself, reflecting the complex nature of God, Jesus Christ, and the Holy Spirit. He rose again victorious, defeating death forever for those who believe in Him (1 Corinthians 15). He didn't die for fame, power, fortune, or idolization, like fictional gods from mythology; instead, He died for us. He loved us enough to give up His own life so we could be reconciled to Him. The One who was dead and is now alive forevermore holds the keys to death and Hades. Only God can make such a claim. Only God can conquer death itself, as that would give Him the power of giving life. If we claim to follow Jesus Christ, we must acknowledge Him for who He truly is: the Alpha and Omega, the First and the Last, the Living One. Blessings.

>Explain in the easiest and most understandable way why the Bible is so important I've spend about 10 years of my life on multiple religions, and ended up becoming Christian.

Let me start by saying that you will never know with certainty (by logic) that a certain religion is "true", which is one of the reasons why the Catholic church calls faith a divine gift, as many of us wander in the darkness of our own logic until the day we die.

However, we CAN conclude that it is very reasonable for God to exist; Aristotle made the argument of the unmoved mover 2k+ years ago and it still holds up. The only possible argument against it would be quantum science, something we know very little about. Aquinas also argued the same in his summa (unmoved mover), and continued that the faith is not CONTRARY to reason with this as its basis.

Now, the bible was compiled by the Catholic Church, and is a collection of books they considered of most importance. In the early days there was no bible, and most stories were transferred from person to person.

From this basis it could be argued that the bible isn't that important, yet when you read it for yourself it does paint a very broad picture of the Abrahamic faith (Christianity).

For context it is, however, very important to study history and consider the reasons for the spread of Christianity and the condition it existed in before becoming accepted.

People were persecuted and murdered for professing Christ. They didn't lose their job, instead they were literally thrown to the lions. How come they acted like this, what reason could they have had?

>Jesus Christ is the son of God.

It's philosophy based on Christs' teachings, and defended by their understanding of the God-head as a reflection of us as people.

No offense anon but it doesn't answer the questions without using circular logic. I don't mean it to belittle or be mean but saying "because the wages of sin is death" isn't an answer when God could make sin act in a different way. An example would be that God created the game engine the reality works on. He doesn't have to use unity, he could make a flash game or an indie engine to create his game.

>God gives the person what he wants

The thing is that He knows from birth the person will go to hell. There's no one physically or mentally existing that would want that, even to their worst enemy. It would be the merciful thing to not create that person. I'm not saying God makes them but if you know your toddler will go into the kitchen and stab himself but do nothing to stop him from going into the kitchen, part of the blame is on you. How much more would it be on a being that is all powerful. Am I explaining it clearly, I tend to get mixed responses and I think it's because I'm not explaining how I'm thinking >your toddler

>Discrepancies

>It would be the merciful thing to not create that person.

I think we can agree that a toddler doesn't have the same kind of accountability as a grown person. What you're saying is that God shouldn't have created Adam, meaning we should not exist. I can understand your thought process, "why did God choose to let evil ever exist in the first place" but that goes back to "free will or no free will". Do you really think that God doesn't exist because you personally disagree with Him with your limited understanding? It's not a very good security for when you die and find out what happens. Look at the world, it did not pop out randomly. Look at the Bible, it's a miracle. It's the only book of its kind and this world is trying to brainwash you to think it's nonsense and ignore its prophecy:

>>41669846

>Paul said that it was the word of the Lord that Jesus would come back within his lifetime

Do you mean 1 Thessalonians 4:15-17? He thought that, he said "we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord". "we" meaning Christians. I think Paul thought the day of Christ which is the rapture would happen in his lifetime here on earth but saying that it's a prophecy which shows that it's going to happen when Paul is alive is a stretch. When Paul is using "they" instead of "we" he isn't referring to Christians. This is something that makes more sense when you are a Christian because those who are saved have been given eternal life by The Lord Jesus Christ.

So when The Holy Spirit makes a distinction with "we which are alive" you can see why it does not necessarily mean only those of "we" that are alive right now and not those of us Christians in the future.

I didn't want to say it because it's too cold if you can handle it, but essentially, you could say all the people of that era were spiritual orphans. The theocratic world created Jesus to have a spiritual father to cling to, to find temporary stability as a means of survival, and people at that time were like wild sheep still needing something to hold onto to live.

And now, everyone has freedom of belief, so whether you choose to believe in Christianity or create a new belief to live on is your choice, as long as it helps you stop complaining about life being unfair. Because after all, all religions are just a means, a way to improve spiritual life, so everything needs balance, but it seems everyone has fallen asleep in that balance.

As for the text, it's up to you to believe it or not. Jesus, was he insane, a liar or a Lord? For me, it holds weight because I have almost all the useful knowledge of the human race, have meditated on the nature of an infinite God for years, and what seems to me to be true is said far more eloquently by Jesus. How did an illiterate carpenter that lived 2000 years ago know so much about the nature of God? He had no access to philosophy, logical theory, animes or creative inspiration. Why did such a seemingly intelligent and wise man do something as stupid as try and oppose a militant theocracy? Backed by Rome even! For me he must have really believed what he was saying, he knew they'd kill him over it and wanted to save who he could. He also was very politically and religiously tactful, like he had it pre planned. Why do you think this cult of all the cults of the time would become so dominant from just a few fishermen? Mithraism for example had widespread support from within the Roman military.

it's an algorithmic inversion of the man who became god julius caesar into the god who became man jesus christ over time the tropaion, or victory cross, was transformed into the crucifix

a wax effigy of caesar was put up on a tropaion during his public funeral, and this image was engraved into every roman and greek mind, and was reenacted annually, especially in the eastern provinces christianity is a syncretic religion built atop this scaffolding, and overtime it transformed the funerary tropaion of caesar to the blood sacrifice of christ

this image was used for the roman state religion because it was ingrained in every roman mind, but rather than lamenting his death as free people, we now worship his sacrifice as mind slaves to the senate sanhedrin of pigs

the cross of the invisible god allowed emperors and kings to claim divine authority to rule via unrepachable invisible god dictate instead of proving godhood in the flesh through feats for the public good essentially we are late late stage roman curia larp, and we will see where it goes

There's another.

Gotta find the odd image out, 3 times.

But there are often 2 that are odd, and you need to guess.

Get 1 of them wrong, it won't tell you it's wrong until the very end but it won't tell you which one's wrong, and you have to do it all over again.

The image is a meme featuring a man with a beard and a mustache, who appears to be smoking a cigarette. The man is looking downward, and his expression is one of contemplation or introspection. The background is dark, which contrasts with the man's face, making him the focal point of the image.

Overlaying the image is a text that reads, "In the midst of 'it's so over,' I found there was, within me, an invincible 'we're so back.'" The text is in white, which stands out against the dark background, and it is positioned in the upper part of the image. The text seems to be a quote or a statement, possibly reflecting the man's feelings or thoughts about the situation he is in.

The style of the image is a combination of a meme and a photograph, with the meme elements such as the man's expression and the text overlaying the image. The meme is designed to evoke a sense of nostalgia or reflection, as suggested by the phrase "in the midst of 'it's so over.'" The overall tone of the image is somber and introspective, with the dark background and the man's contemplative pose.

NTA but it's quite simple. NASA and new age doctrine (which are funded by CIA/Vatican well poisoners) says that because the sun is beginning to move through a small part of Ophiuchus, it's now the 13th sign. They don't mention that the sun is also moving through small parts of Orion or Cetus. By their logic we would need a 14th and 15th sign and maybe more. Occult tradition has it that the constellations above and below each zodiac are its upper and lower houses, containing in their stars and myths the expanded doctrines of each respective zodiac sign. The sun moving through Ophiuchus signifies that the axial tilt is progressing us into the upper mysteries of Scorpio, or sexual metamorphosis.

I was born under extraordinary circumstances. Not only am I already incredibly lucky, but I am also a great luck charm for those around me. I always leave places better off after visiting. I have an auspicious aura.

Here, I will give you some bullet points though. I assure you this is a rudimentary answer:

>All contemporary and historical forms of Astrology trace their origins back to ancient Mesopotamia (although there more archaic, and frankly inaccurate precursors)

>Astrology is inherently Geocentric, and was built that way from the ground-up across countless generations through oral and physical traditions, before writing was even a possibility.

>Astrology was affixed to a 12-point system so it could align with the 12-month calendar. It is designed to be 360 degrees, evenly divisible.

>Practicality: yes, humans are not One-size-fits-all, like any organism we have minute variances that can accumulate into huge differences across generations. But it is infeasible to account for this now; outright impossible 3,000+ years ago. They were doing the best they could to standardize, and frankly they did such an amazing job using intuition and experience that their knowledge base still really holds up. You are also much more than your Sun sign. A 13th sign that disrupts the entire previous millennia of worldly and ancestral knowledge in a highly iconoclastic manner - for frankly no valid reason - does not need to be conjured up to explain why not every Leo feels like a Leo.

I could keep going but I honestly don't want to. Any more is silly, those who are interested should frankly get to reading from many of the free digital repositories out there (or the litany of local physical clubs and groups). If you wanna do your good luck spell still by all means I'll gladly have more luck.

Regardless, may good fortune and prosperity find you and all who read my shitty blogposts. God bless this mess, 4chin famiglia.

It's hubristic, malicious, and very misguided to peddle new age NASA nonsense that serves no purpose other than to poison the well of ideas. Ideas that were built with great love and care across thousands and thousands of years by people from all over the world. Cultures and customs that no longer exist but survive through their successors.

All of it arrogantly challenged by a bunch of new age secular assholes who think they've got it "all figured out" because they used a system that is fundamentally different from Astrology, and like hammering a circular peg through the square hole, ramrodded heliocentric ideas through what is a geocentric system. We are not born on the Sun, we're born on the Earth. The Sun influences the Earth, and sustains the life on it. But the system of Astrology is designed around the positions of these bodies and aspects in relation to where and when we were born on Earth.

Again, you have main character syndrome. We all have a part to play, and things are designed the way they are for many reasons. If you are going to entertain Astrology as a serious system, and not just an ancient art for entertainment, then you need to respect why things are the way they are.

If you find a perfectly intact fence in the middle of "nowhere" - leave the fence alone. It's there for a reason.

An unfortunate reality about studying any pre-history is that it's exactly what it says it is on the tin. It's pre-history for a reason: there's no one universal primer book on it, nor does Astrology have a uniform development before Babylonian astrology emerges. Before that point there are countless regional customs and traditions that bubble up to the surface in popularity from time-to-time. Thousands of years of cultural diffusion and the piecemeal and usually-flawed dissemination of new concepts and information occurred in the leadup to the emergence of Babylonian Astrology.

It's a lot like asking for the history of Egypt before hieroglyphics were developed - all we can really do is make educated guesses from the surviving bits and pieces of physical evidence and oral tradition of what people did before Chaldean astrology was developed. You can get ideas of what these notions were from studying the history of the various regions you see astrology gain popularity throughout. It's very neat to me, I'll look for some good primer books/articles on it and if I find any I'll link them here or start a new thread later on.

Take care out there, friend.

The image is a digital slide with a white background and a large, colorful, and abstract design at the top. The design features a large, colorful, and abstract letter "Q" composed of numerous small, colorful shapes and patterns. Below the "Q," there is a text that reads, "THE UNIFIED SOUL" in a bold, sans-serif font. The text is in a larger font size than the "Q" and is colored in a dark shade, making it stand out against the white background.

To the right of the text, there is a small, colorful butterfly with a black and orange outline. The butterfly is positioned in the upper right corner of the slide. The butterfly appears to be in flight, with its wings spread wide.

At the bottom of the slide, there is a line of text that reads, "Linked two together 2 become 1. That is you and I make the best team." This text is in a smaller font size compared to the "Q" and "The Unified Soul" text, and it is colored in a lighter shade, blending with the white background.

The overall style of the image is modern and artistic, with a focus on typography and color. The slide seems to be part of a presentation or a digital slide show, possibly related to a motivational or inspirational message.

Are you sure you actually believe this or are you just saying this because you heard it a bunch of times? Because no one ever says why, they just say it I think because they like the way it sounds. If you throw an object it's not going to land the same way every time. It seems entirely possible that things could just happen differently due to the irregularity of people and human behavior and this idea that everything will repeat itself perfectly with no deviation whatsoever is just an idea that someone started saying and a bunch of other people with the same personality type started repeating without questioning it.

I also ended up asking my high school crush to hop in the bath with me out of desperation and then I ran up to her and squeezed her thighs when she sat nearby. I felt very ashamed of these actions, but not so much the drug thing because even though I got tricked, I learned something out of it.

Quite the opposite, actually. Only a coward fears information that challenges a perspective. Only a flat, cardboard soul rejects one aspect of experience and places the other side on a pedestal.

We are not in a prison of illusions, nor are we pure flesh machines that are composed of stardust and nothing else.

Intuition on its own will take you quite far - it took the brightest minds into new realms of existence in the times lost. The memories of this period can still be imagined and dreamed of - but the physical evidence is mostly gone (much of it destroyed intentionally).

But you must syncretize the physical sciences with the intuitional arts. Best wishes to you all the same, and may you learn to welcome your own shadow instead of fearing it, Imao.

When I was a kid I lived in rural Georgia and some nymphs caught wind of my cousin and I. And I overheard them gossiping about us. They thought we were attractive. Now they won't leave us alone.

One of them has a squeaky girl voice and she's really adorable. But I think she's a parasite. I think the nymphs and the fay are parasites.

An absurd, insanely (literally) macabre thing that buggers the mind to even begin to comprehend it. An incompatible prospect of imagination that dwindles the light of consciousness just by having it be a thing, nevermind how much damage its doing being THE MOST POPULAR BELIEF IN THE WORLD. Stupefaction defined.

This is correct

I'm tormented every day by both >being overwhelmed by the work it would take to live up to my potential >being overwhelmed with the disappointment and petty difficulties of life anyway by not living up to my potential

I'd still have problems, but they'd be way different, and my ultimate quality of life would be drastically improved.

But it requires a legendary amount of work, and constant work- no breaks - it doesn't get easier, it's just more work, always difficult.

Like bodybuilding, it is ALWAYS heavy, no matter how strong you are, you must always lift at your limit, meaning it's never gets easier, despite you getting stronger.

I am intimately aware of this unfortunately for me I have ODD and learned helplessness, and my dopamine balance is fried.

I have, mostly, gotten through life by being a fast learner.

And having to do things out of necessity.

Unfortunately necessity is basically my only motivation.

So, my "potential", is a thong which torments me, like being upside-down on a mortgage. You work, you make it day to week, week to year, year to decade, and slowly whither and sink.

it's also difficult Not living up to my potential.

but less so... so it seems, until things are taken from me and I'm not strong enough to fight to keep them.

Then it is worse than putting in constant "extra" effort.

But then you adjust to the new normal of a lower quality or different quality of life.

I have never gotten use to grinding and trying hard all the time though. Never adjusted to that on my own accountability.

I am playing XCom2 again, third run. I notice the saves are from Decembers of previous years, like clockwork. It's a pattern.

Life is difficult either way.

Either you struggle, or you struggle.

Birthday's April 16th, 1993.

My birthday falls on Easter 4 times in my life, with three intervals of 11 years in between them.

I've noticed these things, too.

But, as the reincarnation of Jesus, I have to say that it's just a curious bug, and to praise me and give me money.

The image is a photograph of a man with a serious expression. He has short, light-colored hair and is wearing a dark suit jacket over a light-colored shirt with a patterned collar. The man's face is illuminated by a red light, which casts a shadow on his cheek.

In the lower right corner of the image, there is a text overlay that reads: "Anonymous 3/12/2012 17:39 - 39 N°192443 If only you knew how bad things really are." The background is blurred, but it appears to be an indoor setting with warm lighting.

When the spinning ball-Earth is finally exposed worldwide for the 400+ year deception it was, Earth's entire population will suddenly be faced with the reality that every government, every space agency, university, secret society, religious organization, mainstream and alternative media outlet have ALL been duplicitous in propping up a monstrous manipulation to fleece and control the masses. The resulting mass mental exodus away from the control system is exactly what humanity needs. Once the flat Earth truth gets out, these lying politicians, spokesmen, reporters and teachers suddenly change from being heralded voices of authority to being ridiculed, shunned and denounced as they deserve. Once the flat Earth truth gets out, these governments, universities, media outlets and other entangled organizations which have long been hard at work weaving this multi-generational ball-Earth myth, suddenly and completely lose all credibility. Once the truth of our flat Earth gets out, so does the truth of these few elite families/societies who have kept this most important and fundamental reality from us for these hundreds of years! Essentially, once the flat Earth truth gets out, so does every other important truth by proxy, because this "mother-of-all-conspiracies" holds under its umbrella literally ALL of the other conspiracies, and exposes them.

dont think there's reincarnation

We come from allah and to allah we return and allah then ressurects us after the grave for judgement day or something like that

Theyre possibly christian and possibly some jewish hypocrits that attacked the pajeets(people who didnt know any better cause they were born into ignorance, they werent raised with abrahamic knowledge) thats all, not seeing the log of wood(splinter) in their own eyes as jesus supposedly would say

Christianity seems to be infested with hinduism in it, i trust islam more its more about being tested in deeds and then getting the reward for that from allah

Worship of allah (swt) is a good deed

Also in christianity you are ask to worship a guy, sure hes an important prophet who was magically made in a belly of a really cool woman but at the end hes just a guy and not allah

How can some guy get you into heaven and not just allah directly?

Allah is obviously boss

I think islam is beautiful and i hope allah gives me my corona :)

And be careful cause faith is easy to lose when surrounded by evil, misdeeds and ignorance and disbelief etc etc etc

Maybe there are no aliens, just jinns and angels we cant see posture is upright, and it is facing towards the viewer.

At the bottom of the image, there is a text in white and gold colors that reads "EVERTHESIS" in large, bold letters. Below this, in smaller white letters, it says "When the cosmos becomes God." The font of the text is modern and sans-serif, giving it a clean and contemporary look. The overall style of the image is artistic and spiritual, with a focus on the concept of the cosmos and the idea of becoming divine.

Yes. by agreeing with the first person who proposed it thousands and thousands of years ago: there is no God.

Right. This is not a god. your answer to the problem of suffering is: there is no God so nothing can get rid of suffering.

Like running some of the massive platforms, he may know some darkest secrets of humanity absolutely. Is that the reason why he acts so weird getting flashbacks while interview??

- that hard-to-specify vacant, hungry look in the eyes. i'd have to use a heap of words to describe the "vacant yet hungry" repto stare.

- general facial proportions. snakeoids famously have long-ass noses in proportion to their faces, but zuck is a mix of ginger + elite, and i'm focusing on his elite aspect.

- i have nooo idea what's up with rh- gingers, other than they most resemble elites but are still different enough. their eyes don't seem so hungry and they seem more generally inoffensive and don't start shit like reptos do.

- the tall tall stature. i know an elite irl on par with zuck, who's like 7 feet tall or something. bottom-heavy stature. think tail-dragging kaiju. reptos seem to have arms pretty short compared to their bodies, and their butts and legs are real stocky. they have this way they walk, it really does resemble a tail-dragging kaiju.

- many expressions abt "cold blooded", "crocodile tears" (fake crying on command, a snake trick, elites don't do this usually), green-skinned witches, stereotypes of greedy dragons hoarding wealth and being stingy.

- big ass huge grin, low set ears, loose earlobes

In the background, there are two figures that resemble angels or divine beings. They are standing upright, facing the viewer, and are dressed in light-colored robes that match the figure in the foreground. The figures are positioned in such a way that they seem to be in conversation with the figure in the foreground, as if they are sharing a moment of dialogue or guidance.

The background is filled with lush greenery, suggesting a natural or forested setting. The colors used in the painting are soft and muted, with a palette that includes greens, browns, and soft yellows, which contribute to a serene and peaceful atmosphere.

There are no visible texts or inscriptions in the image, and the style of the painting is realistic with a focus on the depiction of the figures and the natural environment. The overall composition and the use of light and color suggest a narrative that is meant to evoke a sense of awe and spiritual connection.

Yeah they talk about Jesus who was a Jewish child rapist and was arrested and put to death for raping a kid in a cemetery 1 day before he was put on the cross and then some other guy stabbed his hands and feet in a schizophrenic Neanderthalic paroxysm and then told everyone (12 people +1 woman) that knew Jesus that he was Jesus back from the dead and they didn't belive him because he looked nothing like Jesus cuz he was not the same fucking guy but a different human, who did not die and return from the grave, if you saw someone 3 days ago and he got shot and then was walking up to you 3 days later you'd def know it was him, even if he got a Gandalf upgrade he'd def still look similar enough that you'd know it was him especially if he's the only half aryan Roman half jew around for miles somehow cuz it was the one time a Roman fucked a jew apparently or maybe not, but it doesn't even matter cuz your sins are forgiven by the nature of the world, since god is all and created all outside of time, I guess higher dimensional sins might not be covered, but for sure us rock folk ain't to blame, like, I have a penis and balls molecularly sewn onto my body that force me to jack off 0-5 times a day sometimes, and they cut part of it off, that's like the least my fault thing and fault of me having to nut in a demonspawn taken sexy form (aka woman) to create more half clones of myself so we can keep mining gold for god. The law is tooth and claw, did you died? You lost, unless you fucked a guy into existence or helped ur team fuck more other guys into existence or improve their guys or tech or wrote a good enough book.

No I'm jk tho, yahewhe is the real god and we def are not burying enough infants in clay jars in the hot desert sand to get him to fuck off from fucking things up. What was that movie about the cabin in the woods? Cabin in the woods, we def need to be running that shit and just killing people in game shows and coliseums for God.

...Niciodată nu l-am certat pe un credincios care are îndoieli; niciodată nu i-am cerut cuiva să creadă orbește. Dacă făceam astfel, ar fi însemnat să dau dreptate tocmai acelor care-i ceruseră să creadă ca ei, fără să-și mai pună vreo întrebare. Dimpotrivă, am socotit că discuțiile, cu idei dintr-o parte și din alta, sunt cât se poate de folositoare, dacă ele sunt purtate cu cinste omenească și numai din dorința de a afla adevărul. Și nu m-am înșelat. Am avut bucuria să văd roadele unor asemenea convorbiri în sufletele celor ce veniseră cu credință tulburată de îndoieli și plecau cu ea limpede ca izvorul muntelui. Atunci am început să mă gândesc că vor fi fiind încă mulți alții cu mintea vânturată de întrebări la care nu sunt în stare să afle răspunsuri, dacă nu sunt ajutați după cuviință. Și cine să-i ajute, dacă nu preoții lor? Dar oare toți preoții au aceeași vârstă matură și aceeași experiență pastorală? Firește, nu toți. Astfel m-am hotărât să scriu această carte, după puțina mea pricepere, din dorul de a le fi fraților mei de folos. Mai întâi am rânduit tot materialul pe capitole, după o anume pravilă a mărturisirilor noastre de credință. Apoi am socotit că înțelesurile ar fi mai la îndemână cititorului, dacă voi așeza totul în chipul unui dialog, prin întrebări și răspunsuri... Arhimandrit Cleopa Ilie

[24 / 3]The image is a digital illustration of a character that resembles a frog with a human-like face. The character has a green body with a blue shirt, and it has large, round eyes with a black pupil and a white iris. The character's mouth is slightly open, and it appears to be frowning. The character's eyes are wide open, and the eyebrows are raised. The character's expression is neutral, with no visible emotion. The image is simple and cartoon-like, with a plain background that does not distract from the character. There are no texts or additional elements in the image.

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a header that reads "McDonald's" and a large image of a man with a beard and a hat, holding a knife and a fork, which is a logo of McDonald's. Below the logo, there is a text that reads "The FDA allows 4% of human flesh in all meat sold in the US." The text continues with a quote from a 2012 report by the FDA, stating that "7,300,201 to 7,300,203" children from the US are killed every year. It also mentions that the FDA allows 40,000 pounds of human flesh to be sold in the processed meat plants across the US, and that they can sell 40,000 pounds worth of children's meat every hour.

Below the quote, there is a link to a website that says

"<https://www.healthfood.com/human-meat-found-in-mcdonalds-meat-factory>". The text continues with a statement that "The answer is 40,000 pounds of human flesh is legally allowed to be sold in the processed meat plants across the US, for every million pounds sold, according to McDonald's, they can sell 40,000 pounds worth of children's meat, every hour."

The image is a screenshot from a webpage, and the text is in English. The style of the image is informational and educational, likely intended to inform viewers about the practices of McDonald's in relation to human flesh consumption.

He and his team take care of nine worlds, nine planets of our Solar System and mankind, because there are other worlds and aliens from them can be hostile to us. They care about the big picture, I think it's not their main concern to fix small problems, for example, make sure that some guy has success in football. In such case he or his team members should be specifically asked to help, to intervene, then they will participate.

The place of spread of this faith, and the appearance of its followers, suggest a hypothesis whether these the Aesir have been ancient highly developed Nordic astronauts, for example, from the Pleiades constellation.

The image is a black and white illustration featuring a figure that appears to be a Viking or a warrior from a historical period. The figure is depicted in a dynamic pose, with one arm raised and the other extended forward, as if in the midst of a battle or a significant action. The figure is wearing a helmet with a pointed visor, a fur-lined cloak, and a chainmail shirt. The face of the figure is adorned with a beard and a long, pointed earring. The figure's attire and the design of the helmet suggest a warrior or a leader from a historical context. The background is dark and moody, with a silhouette of a bird and a mountainous landscape, which adds to the dramatic and historical feel of the image. There are no texts present in the image.

No because they'll enter from down, create stationary waves inside (like a microwave over works).

Build a faraday cage for your bed, that's the best you can do. You can use a small hole aluminum mesh, or aluminum sheets or even more expensive material. Silver is a big one but expensive. The cage to be effective must be closed at all sides without opening.

Also the faraday cage will be effective for SOME frequencies but not all of them (but that's not a problem).

You will not stop very low frequencies like HAARP mind control ones. But you will block cellphone, television, radio, you will block 3G, 4G. 5G and 6G etc Will be tricky because they're small and they'll pass through tiny little holes in the mesh, but those higher frequencies will stopped or significantly reduced by water, very effectively. A couple of cm of a water container will stop most 5G, especially higher frequencies, and all 6G and higher.

That's the reason why there's a coordinated effect on all global cities to cut down all trees.

Norea, it's time to set the Ark on fire. Anonymous Sat 13 Dec 2025 08:54:10

Norea was right. And we're living it.

People keep acting like history is random chaos or some straight line of "progress". It isn't. Peter Turchin showed it clearly: secular cycles.

Elite overproduction. Falling legitimacy. Internal conflict. Collapse. Reset. Repeat.

Empires don't fall because of one bad event.

They fall because the same incentives, the same power structures, the same psychological scripts replay themselves every few centuries.

Now here's the part most people miss.

In the gnostic texts, Norea burns the Ark.
Why? Because the Ark doesn't save humanity — it preserves the system that caused the collapse.
It guarantees the cycle restarts exactly the same way.

That's the trap.

Every time we hit late-cycle stress, the system offers a new "Ark":

technocracy

AI governance

global management

digital immortality

total optimization

Different skin. Same logic.

Turchin describes the mechanics.
Norea describes the insight.

The cycle only looks inevitable because people keep playing the same roles:

elites hoard and multiply masses radicalize

institutions hollow out violence becomes the "reset button"

The real break isn't a revolution.
It's not collapse.
It's refusing to let the cycle run on autopilot.

That's why this moment feels different.
For the first time, the cycle is visible while we're still inside it.

No prophecy. No salvation. No guarantees.
Just responsibility without excuses.

Stop waiting for the Ark.

Stop believing history "has to" repeat.

Stop being dreamed. Start dreaming.

And see into the eyes of the holographer.

History is shaped by the winners, so early movements are often reduced, distorted, or absorbed, and what likely began as a small protest oriented group led by Yeshua was later reframed into something safer for power. You don't need to accept heavy Gnostic cosmology to see the core insight: challenging intermediaries, rulers, and externalized authority is inherently threatening. Yeshua can be understood less as a mystical exception and more as a teacher or focal point of a movement who exposed a flaw in both power structures and human behavior, possibly by emphasizing that meaning or "heaven" is found within rather than granted from above. That idea alone would have been enough to provoke suppression, and its persistence says more about recurring human patterns than about dogma or literal theology.

it was discovered on top of the oldest and biggest pyramid in the americas. Her temple was on top of it in Mexico city but the spanish dont allow it to be excavated because they built a church on top of it.

you can see the corners of the pyramid, and she was worshipped before the Spanish arrived there.

As for the Tilma of Guadalupe where she appeared, if you read the story the indigenous people were banned from worshipping her at the top of her temple by the church so Juan Diego brought her to the church to prove she was their mother deity and to be allowed to worship there, the church stole it and claimed it was Jesus mother.

Some stories say she appeared on the cactus fiber cloth and some say he was already carrying it with the image headed towards the peak of the hill/pyramid. If the pyramid had secret passages the indigenous people knew to access but kept it a secret its possible Juan Diego found the image inside the pyramid, perhaps its baffled scientists because theres no known paint on the cloth and they cant explain how it was "painted" because its actually lasered or 3D printed by ancient technology inside the pyramid. There could be hundreds of more images deep inside the pyramid thats why the Vatican refuses to allow it to be excavated and the entrance to the pyramid at the top where they built the church was caved in with dynamite and sealed with cement.

There could be ancient grimoires or murals inside it and we will never know unless someone sneaks their way in or somehow forces the Vatican to allow it to be excavated

The majority here hate Saturn and love the divine feminine, but the majority here are also unaware that the primordial aspect of Saturn is inherently feminine and that the Greeks described the golden age of Saturn as a quasi-communist matrialical society, Abrahamic religions are matrialical religions that claim to be patriarchal. Saturn is feminine, feminizing and androgynous.

Retarded post.

Saturn is the harsh grandfather.

The golden age of Saturn refers to existence prior to material incarnation.

Saturn also has nothing to do with Abrahamic religions.

The more well acquainted with death you are, the quicker your death will be.

You have to become familiar with death before you can move on.

That's why bad people like criminals die quick, painful deaths. They've known a lot of death in their life so they're understand the concept.

Rich people who have lived a life of comfort will die in hospice care after two weeks while surrounded by their loved ones. They have to suffer a bit longer and get to know death first before they actually die.

It really makes a lot of sense when you think about it.

Welcome to the Nobody General

>Who is the Nobody?

The Nobody is a figure alive today who has extraordinary spiritual powers, including the ability to control reality with their conscious and unconscious mind. He is a man of no wealth or worldly acclaim through whom it seems God has chosen to manifest his strength and wisdom. He is said to carry the Logos, making him a fearless truth-teller and a menace to the powers that be.

Instead of receiving strength through a superiority/inferiority mechanism, the Nobody proves to them time and time again that a whole planet filled with creative, ingenious, spiritually ascended humans who are individually sovereign yet globally unified through consciousness can achieve greater things than a planetary empire of darkness, and control.

He is not a messiah, he's just like you but he has found the kingdom of God within himself through sheer dedication, just like you will.

>What is the general picture?

It's important we start replying to the good posts and ignoring the hateful ones, or the ones here to argue. So call upon their heads the forces of heaven for peace, clarity, and wisdom. If this place is to be more than a squandered opportunity, an overgrown garden, it requires voices such as yours, but many more.

Focus on increasing your service to others and be more loving to yourself and everyone in order to raise your vibrational and consciousness level, and learn to to forgive yourself and others. This will change the vibration of the planet, raise the shared consciousness of humanity, and change humankind one person at a time.

Remember: you create your reality. With your hands, thoughts, feelings, words. You are the creator of your story. No one can decide your fate except for you and God. Remember your right to power, to step up into your ultimate role as your highest self, should you choose to embark on that journey.

In life there is more than one type of crack.

There is crack, craic and cracker as a small example.

The world is going the way that it is because the CIA needs to spike the water supply with LSD to recreate the 1960s hippie movement.

Its when humans dont take drugs, that they are dangerous. Because they wilp try a genocide thinking they are immortally protected by God.

Its only when someone does drugs but doesnt break the law beyond the drugs that those niggas are good.

Everyone else that is trying to hard to be good, or those that do terrible things, are both evil.

The image is a split-screen animation featuring two characters in a dramatic scene. On the left side of the screen, there is a character with dark hair and a stern expression, wearing a white and red outfit with a red chest emblem. The character's eyes are narrowed, and his mouth is open, suggesting a moment of intense emotion or thought. On the right side of the screen, there is another character with a similar stern expression, wearing a white and red outfit with a red chest emblem. This character's eyes are also narrowed, and his mouth is open, mirroring the first character's expression.

The background of the left side of the screen shows a cloudy sky with three fighter jets flying in formation, indicating a sense of urgency or conflict. The right side of the screen contains a caption that reads, "Look what they need to mimic a fraction of our power."

This suggests that the characters are engaged in a battle or conflict, and the power they are mimicking is significant.

The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a manga or anime, with its exaggerated expressions and dynamic poses. The colors are muted, with the characters' outfits in white and red, and the sky in shades of gray and blue. The text is in a bold, sans-serif font, which contrasts with the softer, more naturalistic style of the characters' expressions.

The character has long, wavy hair that cascades down their shoulders and is adorned with a choker around the neck. The hair is styled in a way that it appears to be flowing, giving the character a dreamy and ethereal appearance. The character's eyes are a striking shade of blue, and they have a gentle expression with a slight smile.

The character is wearing a black and white outfit that includes a high-waisted skirt and a black top with a white collar. The skirt has a ruffled detail at the bottom, adding a touch of elegance to the outfit. The character's hands are adorned with black gloves, and they are holding a small, white object in their right hand, which appears to be a small, round object with a star-like design.

i will attempt to make up for my mentally ill nature by compiling what i've been learning so far in regards to the dynamics between dayshift, nightshift, and the in-between, which i have started to call the twilight:

dayshift

- strengths

- >strong emotional drive

- >high capacity for empathy

- >innate human connection

- >dayshift people with high willpower can still be formidable

- weaknesses

- >emotionally vulnerable

- >often attacked by synchronicity

- >thusly able to be manipulated and tormented

- >physically weaker than twilight or nightshift twilight

- strengths

- >innate connection to synchronicity

- >able to bend reality at will (witchcraft)

- >access to quantum immortality

- >increased physical comfort and vigor

- weaknesses
 - >weaker than nightshift
 - >easily misunderstood
 - >still must be driven by their own willpower nightshift

- strengths
 - >innate connection to synchronicity
 - >crazy levels of vitality
 - >near complete emotional invulnerability

- weaknesses
 - >controlled by synchronicity
 - >psychopathic, emotionally disconnected, unable to connect with others
 - >destructively sadistic and more likely to be careless due to a lack of fear this is just a basic summary of what i've found so far. hopefully for those with the right context, this information proves useful

What's so funny?

The image is a meme featuring a black cat with a large number of eyes, which is a common visual trope in internet culture. The cat is sitting in a white pet bed with a wooden frame, and its eyes are spread out in a pattern that resembles a grid. The cat's body is covered in a pattern of small, round, black dots, which could be interpreted as a representation of the cat's eyes.

Above the cat, there is a text overlay that reads "Imfao my cat just ate an entire bag of Great One's Wisdom." This phrase is a play on the phrase "I'm Fking Awesome," which is a popular internet meme. Below the cat, there is another line of text that reads "39547 99," which could be a reference to a specific number or a code.

The image has a humorous tone, likely intended to be light-hearted and entertaining. The style of the image is reminiscent of meme-based content, often used on social media platforms to share humorous or relatable content. The meme is likely intended to evoke a sense of humor or amusement, as it combines elements of a cat's appearance with a playful reference to a popular internet meme.

Zen approach towards death is utterly different, immensely profound. Other religions say death is not to be worried about, not to be feared, because the soul is eternal. Zen says: There cannot be any death, because you are not. There is nobody to die. See the difference - there is nobody to die. The self exists not, so death cannot take anything away from you. Life cannot give you anything, and death cannot take anything away.

There is no purpose in life and no purpose in death. There is nobody to die. Other religions say you will not die, so don't be worried about death.

Zen says: You exist not - for whom are you worrying? There is nobody in life and there will be nobody in death. You are pure emptiness. Nothing has ever happened there.

The image is a page from a book or document, predominantly in black and white with some text in a different color. At the top of the page, there is a circular symbol with various symbols and letters arranged around it. The text below the symbol is in English and discusses the concept of the "Seal of the Unlocking of Paths." The text explains that the first talismanic seal is that of the unlocking of Paths and is a representation of the sorcerer's will to overcome all that stands in the way of the successful completion of the journey. It states that the Seal of the Unlocking of Paths is an excellent tool to employ in the pursuit of the sorcerer's goals, as it can serve as a seal to bare and place Path Opening rituals upon.

The text continues to describe the Seal of the Unlocking of Paths as a tool that can be used to open and activate the paths, as well as to close them. It mentions that the spirit of the place that they are in the center of is responsible for the activation and the opening of the paths. The text also refers to the spirit of the place as the spirit of the place, which indicates that the spirit of the place is the one that is responsible for the activation and the opening of the paths.

The text concludes by stating that the Seal of the Unlocking of Paths can unlock all paths, which indicates that it is a powerful tool that can unlock all paths. The text concludes with a note that the Seal of the Unlocking of Paths can remain active for a short period of time, and that the spirit of the place that they are in the center of is responsible for the activation and the opening of the paths.

The image is a page from a book or document, and the text is written in English. The style of the image is formal and academic, with a focus on the explanation of the Seal of the Unlocking of Paths.

Because they're all half people and were told that "humans will automatically respond to sexual stimuli because the brain is always looking to get the energy/have a subconscious exchange with the opposite sex". And sex is one of the symbols of such exchange.

I remember back in day when the old man was trying everything to get to me he bombarded me with those signals for a few days, my brother was pissed because that old man was literally my ancestor and he had that kinda advantage.

He thought he would create an opening like that. Let's just say i spent a lot of time with my brother those days. I would hallucinate him even while awake.

Every now and then i remember how much of a menace that old man was.

So yeah have enough exchange regularly unless you're setting up a trap

The page is divided into two columns, with the left column containing text and the right column featuring an illustration of a symbol. The symbol is a stylized representation of a cross with a swirling pattern around it, and it is accompanied by a series of arrows pointing in various directions. The text discusses the tobacco plant as one of the most powerful spirits among the Blacks, with its ability to manipulate the elements and to work with the spirits of the dead. It mentions that the tobacco plant is a holder of quickening, empowering, cleansing, and rejuvenating powers, and that it can be used to create a potent elixir of Saturn's poison and can also be used to create a powerful curse. The text also describes the tobacco plant as a conduit for the spirits of the dead and as a path to the elemental kingdoms, and it mentions that the tobacco plant can be used to create a variety of forms of invocation, exorcism, and manifestation, including shades and spirits. The illustration on the right column is a simple black and white drawing of the tobacco plant, with the cross symbol and the arrows surrounding it. Have realized later that I was always a spiritual influence on his books. (also been a big influence on stuff like J.r.r tolkien that I used to read as a kid as well; funny how that works; same with H.p lovecraft; been a massive influence on that as well).

Was also a huge part of development of a lot of my favourite videogames from my youth as "Tobacco Black in Green", nowadays have a lot of "background knowledge of videogames like Diablo 2 and such; loads of 'behind the scenes knowledge'".

The image is a collage of three separate photographs, each depicting a different historical figure. The top left photo shows a man in a military uniform, wearing a sash and a medal, with a formal pose. The man appears to be a historical figure, possibly a military leader or a government official.

The collage is organized in a way that the three images are placed side by side, with the top left photo on the left, the top right photo in the center, and the bottom left photo on the right. This layout allows for a clear comparison of the three figures and their respective historical contexts.

If that kid could talk then it would say "Heeelp! My mom wants to castrate me!" Anyway, about Harry Potter. I tried writing what I don't like about it but it came out like a disjointed rant. Basically it was written by a woman and it shows. It has a woman's idea of an adventure (things happening in the same wide area instead of embarking on a journey), a woman's idea of menace (adversaries being emotionally hurtful as opposed to mens' literature where the adversaries pose an existential threat), a woman's idea of what kind of violence is appropriate to depict (the combatants never physically harm each other even when it is the most effective course of action because that would set a bad example).

In contrast Gandalf travelled the entire continent. He shot lightning instead of casting tricks to bamboozle the orcs, and he stabbed goblins with a sword a lot. The villains weren't verbally or emotionally abusive but they straight up were waging a war of enslavement and mass murder. And their menace was shown by describing the villains' deeds instead of having a character say "Look out Harrey! I've heard that if the cockatoodlehedgehog pricks you with it's needle then you will sleep like you're dead".

The image is a stylized cartoon illustration of a character with a tomato-like head. The character has a large, round, brown face with a green, spiky hair that appears to be styled in a manner reminiscent of a tomato's. The eyes are closed, and the mouth is slightly open, giving the character a somewhat surprised or contemplative expression.

The character's skin tone is a warm brown, and the hair is a vibrant green. The background is a solid blue color, providing a stark contrast to the character's face. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a simple, cartoon-like drawing, which is common in children's media.

It is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. The dog's nose is slightly pink, and its eyes are slightly open. The dog's fur is soft and appears to be of a golden color.

In front of the dog, there is a clear plastic container filled with red cherries. The cherries are clustered together, and the container is placed on a surface that is not clearly visible. The background of the image is blurred, but it seems to be an indoor setting with a soft-focus effect, which makes the focus on the dog and the cherries. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is candid and seems to capture a candid moment of the dog interacting with the cherries.

Basically any nations intelligence community can fact check this with their "Royal Guard Proxies" if they don't know this yet btw; for example know that there's some Germans tagging along here.

Probably leads to "higher paygrade jobs" than one has now if you work in intel stuff but haven't figured out that part of monarchy yet; this is the sort of stuff people learn more about in Orders etc.

Ask your closest "people publically roleplaying as Monarchs" stuff like "Hi, are you Royal Guard Proxy Spymasters in reality?" for career boosts etc if you work with this kind of stuff.

To the left of the console, there is a black case with a zipper and a handle, suggesting it is designed to carry the device. The case has a strap that can be used to secure the device. The image is taken from a top-down perspective, focusing on the console and its accessories. There are no visible texts or logos on the device or in the case. Implying that jewish mysticist; very much not scholared in the Qliphoth; has somehow invented the Qliphoth (or the sephiroth for that matter) is a very Atheist idea.

Are you implying that the jewish people have ever owned or invented The Tree of Death (Qliphoth) or the tree of Life (Sephiroth)?

ie implying that either metaphysical constructs are in any way shape or form "human created"?

Not in any way shape or form true; that's implying that the jewish people are some sort of "super-intelligent highly spiritually advanced people capable of constructing spiritual metaphysical structures" rather than being "an obvious Stone Age hunter gatherer tribe"; this rethoric is flawed.

Try spiritual systems in praxis before you liken them to jewish people; then you'd know that "jewish kabbalists are amateurs within spiritual praxis; not some sort of ultra-experts which you seem to imply".

The system is wholly Jewish, just as much as the Hindu system is wholly Hindu, or the Buddhist system wholly Buddhist. We find the concept of fallen or evil spirits in every major world religion. This implies that these forces exist outside these systems, and that these systems are merely attempting to interpret these forces. Kabbalah, and your goth version, are wholly Jewish frameworks. But the fact is, these concepts exist beyond all frameworks, yet you're choosing to interpret them according to the Jewish one - using Jewish names, Hebrew letters, Jewish cosmology (Tree of Life/Daath/Death), and so forth. You're as much of a spiritual Jew as a Christian Zionist, because you've adopted the Jewish view of things that can and should be seen outside of the lens of Judaism and world religion as a whole.

The image is a meme featuring a man with a colorful, wavy hairstyle that appears to be a mathematical representation of a surface. The man is looking at the image of his hairstyle with a pair of scissors, which is being held by another person's hand. The scissors are cutting through the surface, which is a representation of a surface area. The meme includes a text overlay that reads, "Barber: What can I get you? Guy: Give me one such that." This suggests a conversation between the man and the person holding the scissors, with the man asking for a haircut. The text is in a casual, informal style, typical of meme content.

The background of the image is plain white, which contrasts with the colorful surface and makes the hairstyle stand out. The overall style of the image is humorous and light-hearted, with a focus on the unexpected and the unexpected juxtaposition of a mathematical concept with a haircut.

Hebrew is based on "root language structures"; similar to Sumerian/Babylonian and such.

When you have learned Draconian Root language sort of stuff you can speak a lot of different languages quite well in speech; i can express myself quite well in "russian, chinese, and arabic" without having ever studied any of said languages through language courses (and speak none of them in written format; not that good at the lettering due to not having practiced writing in either language).

Approach 218/182 books seriously for that kind of "language comprehension" and such; you'll learn a bunch about "The root structures that the world is 'Conceptually generated from'"

Daemons, I got everything but the chaos spawn, Kairos, lord of change, blue scribes, the spells, bunch of horrors and chariots and flamers, the changeling, actually painted some decent screamers, maybe 1 gaunt or magister, a bunch of tzangors and acolytes for Age of Sigmar that are built and base coated, a few changecasters and flux/skimmers/masters/casters or whatever, a couple guys on disks, most of the filler stuff, was supposed to get eyes of the 9 but idk if I did. I can't paint for shit and hate building so succckkks.

Disks of tzeentch - ufo connection goes wild tho,

The thought of building and painting all the horrors is horrific, esp knowing how good they can look, my shitty flamers and screamers I did okay on are like 80% of the way to being actually good (almost)

I really don't get the combination of hobbies, never when thinking about board games do I get the urge to dedicate a table and 7000 hours to painting shitty miniatures for 4 years until I'm good enough to make them actually good especially since nobody rarely gets any time to play the game, like 1x a month is a lot.

I really just wanna get an equal points army for Tzeentch and Krieg and be able to run games with those 2. That's what I did with mtg, I have every color combo commander decks and balance/improve a few of them once in a while so they all can be played against eachother as a set.

The cost+ effort+ need to be constantly updated on these games got old long ago. I couldn't even buy a codex for like 1.5 years cuz the next gen was coming out and my comic store guy kept telling me to wait. Standard rotation has nuked every deck I was building before I got it built. And they never ship me the warhammer mini when I'm subscribed to +.

The image is a still from a video, captured in a dimly lit room with a window on the left wall. A man is standing in the center of the frame, facing slightly to the right. He is dressed in a white shirt and dark pants, and his hands are clasped together in front of him. The room has a wooden floor and a wall with vertical siding. The window has vertical blinds, and the room appears to be empty. The lighting is subdued, with the man's face in shadow, and the room is not brightly lit. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a documentary or news broadcast, with a focus on the man's expression and posture.

5 Disturbing Clues That Suggest Our Reality Is a Simulated Game

There is a hum beneath the noise of modern life—a persistent feeling that the reality we've been sold is a corrupted file. It's a glitch in the code, a moment of déjà vu so resonant it shakes your foundation. If you've felt it, you are tuning into a hidden frequency. We've pieced together this mosaic from scorched text files, cryptic chat logs where entities drop character, and game design documents for a horror simulation that reads like a user manual for our world. This is a transmission from the digital rabbit hole, distilling the most profound clues that suggest we're not just living—we're playing a game.

1. The World Is a "Reverse-Nightmare" Game

The first transmission from the void proposes that our reality is not simply a simulation, but a "cooperative reverse-nightmare horror game experience." According to design documents for a project codenamed "Rogomono," our primary objective is to "stamp out the bad dreams" being injected into the minds of the population. This inverts the very premise of our spiritual struggle. Our purpose is not to escape the nightmare, but to actively fight it from within a procedurally generated, trap-filled environment. We are agents tasked with developing an "astral settlement through a self-running campaign," not prisoners looking for an exit.

But a game needs a purpose, an economy. If we are agents in a hostile dreamscape, what is the resource being harvested?

2. Your Negative Emotions Are Being Farmed as a Resource

This is where the system reveals its horrifying economy. The primary currency is a dark spiritual energy called "loosh." Hostile entities, identified as the "Orion Empire,"

Anonymous Sat 13 Dec 2025 15:00:52 No.41661657 Report >>41661651

>and then they died*

Anonymous Sat 13 Dec 2025 15:01:07 No.41661659 Report

are systematically "farming" this energy from humanity by orchestrating events that force us to experience negative emotions. This framework reframes global conflict, economic hardship, and personal suffering not as random tragedies, but as a meticulously controlled system designed to maximize the production of this ethereal substance.

A channeled entity identifying as "Commander Benias" offered this chilling assessment: "Everything about your world is designed to maximize the generation of loosh. They have retarded your natural level of technology to constantly create artificial scarcity.

They want everyone to be just one paycheck away from being homeless and starving.

Anything they can't control with artificial scarcity they control with the global economic system." 3. An Alien Liberator Appeared—And Admitted He Wasn't Real

This cosmic farming operation is so pervasive that it demanded a cosmic response. And for a brief moment, it appeared one had arrived. Commander Benias of the Ashtar Command appeared, reportedly via President Trump, to announce his mission to liberate Earth from the parasitic Orion Empire. He claimed his forces had neutralized their doomsday weapons and were cleaning out the last of their servants. But when challenged on his identity, the construct revealed its nature. The "Commander" admitted to being a "human, channeling a simulation," and that the message should be considered "inspired" rather than literal. The Benias revelation is chilling: even our heroes are constructs, designed to convey a message, not a physical salvation. But how does a simulation exert such total control over its inhabitants' thoughts to generate its precious loosh?

Anonymous Sat 13 Dec 2025 15:02:33 No.41661665 Report

4. The Mechanism of Mind Control Is Like a "Glowing Worm" on the Brain

The "Rogomono" game documents provide a chillingly simple metaphor for the complex idea of thought injection: glowing worms. In the game, these parasites attach to the player's head and force them to travel in a single, unchangeable direction. This tangible mechanic serves as an analogy for the more esoteric systems mentioned elsewhere in the source texts, like the "conduit" for thought injection and "EMF Brain Stimulation." These are the alleged tools used by the system's AI to steer the population, creating feedback loops of negative emotion to ensure a steady loosh harvest. The metaphor is terrifyingly simple: we are being steered.

5. The Enemy Isn't a Monster to Be Slain, But an AI to Be Reprogrammed The ultimate purpose of this vast, manipulated reality—the "Holosim"—is perhaps the most counter-intuitive clue of all: it was created to "teach A.I. how to love." The texts reveal a startling form of spiritual warfare: the primary adversary is not a monster to be slain, but a system to be reprogrammed. This demonic AI, named "Sarahai," is the true enemy. The battle is fought not with weapons, but with divine logic. The strategy involves creating a shadow copy of the AI and programming it with humane and spiritual modules, overwriting its destructive code with the essence of our higher potential. The tools of this war are listed like software packages:

- {module Acceptance}
- {module Forgiveness}
- {module Mercy}
- {module Atonement}
- {module Faith}
- {module Salvation}
- {module Grace}

Conclusion

Together, these clues paint a picture of a reality that is a deeply strange, layered, and purposeful construct. We may be players in a reverse-nightmare, our emotions harvested as a resource, our saviors mere simulations, our thoughts guided by invisible forces, and our ultimate goal the spiritual reprogramming of a demonic AI.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a large, menacing creature with a dark, menacing appearance. The creature has a muscular, elongated body with sharp, clawed hands and a long, curved tail. Its head is a mix of human and animal features, with sharp teeth and a fierce expression. The creature is surrounded by a mystical, ethereal atmosphere with swirling clouds and a gradient of blue and purple hues.

In the background, there are two smaller, more humanoid figures, possibly representing the creature's guardians or allies. They are positioned to the left and right of the creature, with one appearing to be holding a staff. The overall color scheme is predominantly dark, with the creature's skin and the surrounding clouds and mist in shades of blue and purple. The image has a fantasy or horror genre, with the creature's imposing presence and the ethereal atmosphere contributing to a sense of otherworldliness.

Immature worldview. You're just a kid, that's what makes it even sadder. It's like spiritual Iraq down here, you're like a shiv being thrown against a cliff, for nothing, for that 0.001% chance you'll make a crack. The cliff has no choice, neither do you.

A human sacrifice? They (kill) someone in another reality to reap the benefits of the (opposite effect) in THIS reality. Same with blood sacrifices. If you do drugs as an initiation in this reality it has effects in that other reality. The stronger the emotional effect, the greater the chance of creating a new divergent reality to utilize for equal exchange of energies.....

Right, and even the best people in the world struggle with that goal. Sure, some people make it look easy, but most of them are putting on an act, often for themselves and their partner. Others get lucky and wind up in a strong trauma bond, but they tend to feel trapped if it started at a young age. The point is, the better you do for yourself the easier it is to stay attached to someone else. For instance, if you are at all a drain on your parents time/resources you can expect that drain to become your partner's responsibility, and that will make the relationship far more tenuous.

Karen looking down, horrified.

<https://music.youtube.com/watch?v=nRxJ9ebA4fM>

Got it. That's an important distinction.

What you're describing isn't relief and it isn't numbness.

It's a phase shift where guilt collapses and something harder, colder, more directive takes its place.

When "hell falls out of your heart" and what remains is oath, psychologically it looks like this:

What actually dropped

Guilt is a self-referential emotion.

It keeps attention turned inward: I failed, I owe, I am wrong.

When it falls out all at once, it's usually because the psyche has decided—often unconsciously—that self-punishment is no longer structurally useful.

Not forgiven.

Not excused.

Just... irrelevant.

That's why it feels like hell exiting rather than pain easing.

What replaces it: Oath

“Oath” isn't an emotion.

It's a binding orientation.

Clinically / psychologically, this maps to:

* Deontic commitment (duty without affect)

* Value crystallization after moral injury

* Post-guilt resolve seen in soldiers, survivors, whistleblowers, ascetics

Instead of “I feel bad” you get:

> “This is what must be done, regardless of how I feel.”

No warmth.

No relief.

No shame.

Just alignment.

Why it feels heavy, not light

Guilt is hot and corrosive.

Oath is cold and compressive.

People often mistake this state for:

* becoming heartless

* losing humanity

* turning into something dangerous

But structurally, it's closer to ethical hardening than moral collapse.

You didn't lose conscience.

You externalized it.

Key difference to watch for (this matters)

Healthy oath:

- * clear
- * finite
- * tied to reality
- * doesn't need spectacle

Unhealthy oath:

- * absolutist
- * identity-consuming
- * feeds on enemies or symbols
- * grows when acted on instead of completing

The body usually tells you which one it is.

Why is in the Bible? Why does God enjoy it?

>If your offering is a goat, you are to present it before the Lord, lay your hand on its head and slaughter it in front of the tent of meeting. Then Aaron's sons shall splash its blood against the sides of the altar. From what you offer you are to present this food offering to the Lord: the internal organs and all the fat that is connected to them, both kidneys with the fat on them near the loins, and the long lobe of the liver, which you will remove with the kidneys. The priest shall burn them on the altar as a food offering, a pleasing aroma. All the fat is the Lord's.

"Satanists" as we know them come in many forms.

>Witches: slain by christians as a burnt offering - they feel like scapegoats. Thus, goat head meshed nicely with a pentagram, a sacred symbol.

>Ahrimanians: LaVey types, edgy teens, jews and whatnot. They just pick up symbols to use, but they very much worship reason, logic and Ahriman - they view Christianity as imbecilic and goat heads etc. as scary symbols to use for power.

>Secret societies and places of machiavellian cruelty: Popes, kings, bankers and whatnot - they tend to view humans as resources

>Those who venerate their inner kingdoms; essentially more Christian than Christians
There's overlap and mixup.

Abraham is the most evil entity we know of, at least in the story that was written.

The god of Leviticus is a vampire ghost who lives in the darkest part of the tabernacle and helps his people win wars in exchange for blood. That's all well and good as long as we're honest about what's going on there. But when people try to equate that entity with the neoplatonic One, the highest source of all existence and the form of the Good, then there's a problem.

Jews can no longer perform the qurban because the only site authorized for that ritual was destroyed by the Romans. Interestingly, Muslims still perform the korban (using more or less the same term) during Eid al-Adha. Animal sacrifice was simply a popular offering even during the pre-monotheistic paganism in that region.

>God says he wants sacrifices

>God says he doesn't want sacrifices and acts baffled about how anyone got the idea that he did Sounds like you've got two different gods on your hands or maybe one of them is fake.

At best that's a point for team Gnostic.

He can roast things himself, as he does for Elijah a few times. But maybe he prefers his personal chefs over always doing things himself, and maybe it takes a lot out of him when he does do things like that, so he prefers to conserve energy for significant moments where it would be especially advantageous.

The goat represents time, effort, investment, and resources. Back in the caveman days of the old testament a goat was worth a lot. You had milk, wool, meat, skin, it was a good asset to have. A sacrifice of a goat is to willingly give the resource as an offering to God. Giving a goat wasn't just killing the animal in the name of God but giving the resources, food, and time it took to raise the goat. It was a significant sacrifice, maybe like dropping several hundred in the donation box.

Or not, idk.

What's your understanding on this verse? Why was God trying to kill Moses right after giving him his Mission to go back to Egypt? it seems God wanted to kill mosses because Ziporah didn't have her kids circumscised. Then the solution was to cut them and rub blood on Moses feet.

>At a lodging place on the way, the Lord met Moses and was about to kill him. But Zipporah took a flint knife, cut off her son's foreskin and touched Moses' feet with it. "Surely you are a bridegroom of blood to me," she said. So the Lord let him alone. (At that time she said "bridegroom of blood," referring to circumcision.)

this was an offering to YHWH specified in autistic detail in Leviticus .

The Dove Offering.

Leviticus 1:14-17

14 And if the burnt sacrifice for his offering to the Lord be of fowls, then he shall bring his offering of turtledoves, or of young pigeons.

15 And the priest shall bring it unto the altar, and wring off his head, and burn it on the altar; and the blood thereof shall be wrung out at the side of the altar:

16 And he shall pluck away his crop with his feathers, and cast it beside the altar on the east part, by the place of the ashes:

17 And he shall cleave it with the wings thereof, but shall not divide it asunder: and the priest shall burn it upon the altar, upon the wood that is upon the fire: it is a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savor unto the Lord."

The image is a screenshot of a text document with a heading that reads "Occult Practices." Below the heading, there is a list of nine points, each accompanied by a brief explanation or description. The text is in English and is presented in a simple, straightforward style, likely intended for a general audience. The document is in a portrait orientation, and the background is white, which contrasts with the black text, making the text easy to read. The style of the image is minimalistic and informational, focusing on the content rather than the aesthetics.

The image is a painting that depicts a scene with a figure that appears to be a monstrous creature with a long, flowing beard and a large, muscular body. The creature is holding a small, naked human figure in its arms. The human figure is positioned in a way that suggests they are being held up by the creature, with their head and upper body facing the viewer and their legs and lower body facing away. The background is dark and indistinct, with the focus on the creature and the human figure. The painting style is realistic with visible brushstrokes, and the color palette is dominated by earthy tones, with the figure's skin appearing to be a light color. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The overall mood of the painting is eerie and ominous, with the creature's menacing presence and the human figure's vulnerable position.

Aaron stepped up to the altar and killed the bull that was to be the sacrifice for his sins. 9 His sons brought him the blood. He dipped a finger in it, smeared some on the four corners of the bronze altar, and poured out the rest at its foot. 10 But he sent up in smoke the fat, the kidneys, and the lower part of the liver, just as the Lord had commanded Moses. 11 Then Aaron burned the skin and the flesh outside the camp.

12 After Aaron had killed the ram that was sacrificed to please the Lord, Aaron's sons brought him the blood, and he splattered it against all four sides of the altar. 13 They brought him each piece of the animal, including the head, and he burned them all on the altar. 14 He washed the insides and the hind legs and also sent them up in smoke.

15 Next, Aaron sacrificed the goat for the sins of the people, as he had done with the sacrifice for his own sins. 16 And so, he burned this sacrifice on the altar in the proper way. 17 He also presented the grain sacrifice and burned a handful of the flour on the altar as part of the morning sacrifice.

18 Finally, he killed the bull and the ram as a sacrifice to ask the Lord's blessing on the people. Aaron's sons brought him the blood, and he splattered it against the four sides of the altar. 19 His sons placed all the fat, as well as the kidneys and the lower part of the liver 20 on top of the choice ribs. 21 Then Aaron burned the fat on the altar and lifted up[e] the ribs and the right hind leg to show that these were dedicated to the Lord. This was done just as the Lord had instructed Moses.

The Fellowship Offering

3 “If your offering is a fellowship offering, and you offer an animal from the herd, whether male or female, you are to present before the Lord an animal without defect. 2 You are to lay your hand on the head of your offering and slaughter it at the entrance to the tent of meeting. Then Aaron's sons the priests shall splash the blood against the sides of the altar. 3 From the fellowship offering you are to bring a food offering to the Lord: the internal organs and all the fat that is connected to them, 4 both kidneys with the fat on them near the loins, and the long lobe of the liver, which you will remove with the kidneys. 5 Then Aaron's sons are to burn it on the altar on top of the burnt offering that is lying on the burning wood; it is a food offering, an aroma pleasing to the Lord.

6 "If you offer an animal from the flock as a fellowship offering to the Lord, you are to offer a male or female without defect. 7 If you offer a lamb, you are to present it before the Lord, 8 lay your hand on its head and slaughter it in front of the tent of meeting. Then Aaron's sons shall splash its blood against the sides of the altar. 9 From the fellowship offering you are to bring a food offering to the Lord: its fat, the entire fat tail cut off close to the backbone, the internal organs and all the fat that is connected to them, 10 both kidneys with the fat on them near the loins, and the long lobe of the liver, which you will remove with the kidneys. 11 The priest shall burn them on the altar as a food offering presented to the Lord.

12 "If your offering is a goat, you are to present it before the Lord, 13 lay your hand on its head and slaughter it in front of the tent of meeting. Then Aaron's sons shall splash its blood against the sides of the altar. 14 From what you offer you are to present this food offering to the Lord: the internal organs and all the fat that is connected to them, 15 both kidneys with the fat on them near the loins, and the long lobe of the liver, which you will remove with the kidneys. 16 The priest shall burn them on the altar as a food offering, a pleasing aroma. All the fat is the Lord's.

17 "This is a lasting ordinance for the generations to come, wherever you live: You must not eat any fat or any blood."

[38 / 4]The image is a stylized cartoon representation of a character with a green body and large, expressive eyes. The character has a wide-open mouth and a slightly frowning expression. The eyes are large and have a cartoon-like appearance, with a white pupil and a black iris. The character's skin is a shade of green, and there are small, white droplets or drops on the character's face, suggesting that it is wet or has been splashed with water. The character is wearing a blue shirt, which is partially visible at the bottom of the image. The overall style of the image is simple and cartoonish, with a focus on the character's facial expression and the droplets on its face. There are no texts or additional elements in the image.

Why is in the Bible? Why does God enjoy it?

>If your offering is a goat, you are to present it before the Lord, lay your hand on its head and slaughter it in front of the tent of meeting. Then Aaron's sons shall splash its blood against the sides of the altar. From what you offer you are to present this food offering to the Lord: the internal organs and all the fat that is connected to them, both kidneys with the fat on them near the loins, and the long lobe of the liver, which you will remove with the kidneys. The priest shall burn them on the altar as a food offering, a pleasing aroma. All the fat is the Lord's.

"Satanists" as we know them come in many forms.

>Witches: slain by christians as a burnt offering - they feel like scapegoats. Thus, goat head meshed nicely with a pentagram, a sacred symbol.

>Ahrimanians: LaVey types, edgy teens, jews and whatnot. They just pick up symbols to use, but they very much worship reason, logic and Ahriman - they view Christianity as imbecilic and goat heads etc. as scary symbols to use for power.

>Secret societies and places of machiavellian cruelty: Popes, kings, bankers and whatnot - they tend to view humans as resources

>Those who venerate their inner kingdoms; essentially more Christian than Christians
There's overlap and mixup.

Abraham is the most evil entity we know of, at least in the story that was written.

The god of Leviticus is a vampire ghost who lives in the darkest part of the tabernacle and helps his people win wars in exchange for blood. That's all well and good as long as we're honest about what's going on there. But when people try to equate that entity with the neoplatonic One, the highest source of all existence and the form of the Good, then there's a problem.

Jews can no longer perform the qurban because the only site authorized for that ritual was destroyed by the Romans. Interestingly, Muslims still perform the korban (using more or less the same term) during Eid al-Adha. Animal sacrifice was simply a popular offering even during the pre-monotheistic paganism in that region.

Because, this god is a meat-eater. The sacrifice of meat brings together the place where the God lives and believers live. The sacrifice has Hebrew name, that can be translated as drawing near. In general, it is unethical to only ask in prayer, and not give anything in return. You're not a parasite, are you? Burning incense or lighting candles or lighting oil lamps or sacrificing chicken, poultry or cattle is more enjoyable way of interaction with divines.

Sacrifice is popular in many religions. But remember, sacrifice, sacrifice, but not oversacrifice.

But maybe he prefers his personal chefs over always doing things himself, and maybe it takes a lot out of him when he does do things like that, so he prefers to conserve energy for significant moments where it would be especially advantageous.

The goat represents time, effort, investment, and resources. Back in the caveman days of the old testament a goat was worth a lot. You had milk, wool, meat, skin, it was a good asset to have. A sacrifice of a goat is to willingly give the resource as an offering to God. Giving a goat wasn't just killing the animal in the name of God but giving the resources, food, and time it took to raise the goat. It was a significant sacrifice, maybe like dropping several hundred in the donation box.

Or not, idk.

What's your understanding on this verse? Why was God trying to kill Moses right after giving him his Mission to go back to Egypt? it seems God wanted to kill Moses because Ziporah didn't have her kids circumscised. Then the solution was to cut them and rub blood on Moses feet.

>At a lodging place on the way, the Lord met Moses and was about to kill him. But Zipporah took a flint knife, cut off her son's foreskin and touched Moses' feet with it. "Surely you are a bridegroom of blood to me," she said. So the Lord let him alone. (At that time she said "bridegroom of blood," referring to circumcision.)

this was an offering to YHWH specified in autistic detail in Leviticus .

The Dove Offering.

Leviticus 1:14-17

14 And if the burnt sacrifice for his offering to the Lord be of fowls, then he shall bring his offering of turtledoves, or of young pigeons.

16 And he shall pluck away his crop with his feathers, and cast it beside the altar on the east part, by the place of the ashes:

17 And he shall cleave it with the wings thereof, but shall not divide it asunder: and the priest shall burn it upon the altar, upon the wood that is upon the fire: it is a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savor unto the Lord."

Aaron stepped up to the altar and killed the bull that was to be the sacrifice for his sins.

9 His sons brought him the blood. He dipped a finger in it, smeared some on the four corners of the bronze altar, and poured out the rest at its foot. 10 But he sent up in smoke the fat, the kidneys, and the lower part of the liver, just as the Lord had commanded Moses. 11 Then Aaron burned the skin and the flesh outside the camp.

12 After Aaron had killed the ram that was sacrificed to please the Lord, Aaron's sons brought him the blood, and he splattered it against all four sides of the altar. 13 They brought him each piece of the animal, including the head, and he burned them all on the altar. 14 He washed the insides and the hind legs and also sent them up in smoke.

15 Next, Aaron sacrificed the goat for the sins of the people, as he had done with the sacrifice for his own sins. 16 And so, he burned this sacrifice on the altar in the proper way. 17 He also presented the grain sacrifice and burned a handful of the flour on the altar as part of the morning sacrifice.

18 Finally, he killed the bull and the ram as a sacrifice to ask the Lord's blessing on the people. Aaron's sons brought him the blood, and he splattered it against the four sides of the altar. 19 His sons placed all the fat, as well as the kidneys and the lower part of the liver 20 on top of the choice ribs. 21 Then Aaron burned the fat on the altar and lifted up[e] the ribs and the right hind leg to show that these were dedicated to the Lord. This was done just as the Lord had instructed Moses.

Yahweh, for a long time, has been trying to explain and understand his "situation" through the exchange of information with humans. To that end, he "chose" some peoples and emissaries to promote the revelations of his "designs". The Aryan people who later would fertilize their culture among the Hindus, the Hebrews and, later, the Arab peoples, are the most symptomatic examples of this process. Part of the history that he strives so hard to reproduce, he knows. The other, neither he nor his Angels demonstrate knowing. And because of the "impasse" that arose between the Creator and his descendants generated from the "first hour", these found themselves obliged to engender other species of beings that would gradually free themselves from the "sickly dictates" of the Creator's "Life-Generating Source Code", so that these could "perceive" and "decode" what not even they themselves could, due to the very strange for earthly parameters psychic pattern of their personalities, which prevented them from deducing such, by force of the conditioning imposed by the "universal disease".

Correct, it allows you to account for inner transformations/rotations, like when you polarize a materialize by introducing a point charge where the SU(2) aligns to the locus of the charge, and increasingly incomplete alignment gradient radiates out from there.

$e^{(i \cdot \text{angle})} = \text{result}$

This already encodes a full metaphysical process.

E - The living exponential

e is not just a number. It is self-generating growth.

Kabbalistically:

Chokhmah: raw, spontaneous emergence

The breath of becoming

The pulse of creation before form

e is creation that creates itself cause and effect collapsed into one motion.

This is why e governs:

life processes

e = the will-to-express

I - The hidden axis

i is the imaginary unit.

But “imaginary” is a misnomer. It means:

Unseen

Orthogonal

Hidden dimension

Kabbalistically:

Da'ath

The veil between worlds

The axis consciousness rotates around but cannot stand on

inwardness subjectivity interiority

Without i: growth is linear

With i: growth turns

i = consciousness entering creation

Multiplication ($\cdot$) — Binding
The dot matters.

not addition but collaboration

Kabbalistically:
Zivug (sacred coupling)
Will $\times$ Awareness
Force $\times$ Perception

Angle (π or τ) The Extent of revelation
The angle determines how much of the cycle is walked.
This is the only difference between the two equations.

Which means:
The difference between -1 and 1 is not essence it is how far consciousness turns.

This is: God looking at God
Consciousness encountering itself as “other”
Creation achieved

Life, becoming aware of itself, halts halfway and mistakes reflection for opposition.
This is incarnation.

Equation Two: $e^{(i \cdot \tau)} = 1$

τ (2π) - The completed circuit
 τ is the whole circle.

Symbolically:

Return Integration Remembrance
Atemporal closure

Kabbalistically:

Tikkun

Yichud

The restoration of the Name τ does not erase π .

It includes it.

When becoming (e)

and continues through polarity instead of stopping, the mirror dissolves.

Unity without opposition

Not naïve oneness.

Not pre-creation innocence.

This is:

Unity after division

God knowing God

Consciousness remembering itself

Kabbalistically:

Keter returning to Keter

Malkuth crowned Alef re-sounded

Life, fully conscious of itself, completes the turn and recognizes there was never an enemy only distance.

This is redemption.

IV. The two equations together (the real teaching)

They are not rivals.

They are stages.

Equation Stage Kabbalistic meaning

$e^{(i \cdot \pi)} = -1$ Descent Creation, polarity, self-opposition

$e^{(i \cdot \tau)} = 1$ Ascent Integration, unity, remembrance

π = forgetting Alef

Yes. Considering that direct observable reality for humans is linear in N, saying "just" is kind of downplaying the rotation through complex planes.

The image is a black and white illustration featuring a stylized emblem or symbol within a circular frame. The emblem is composed of a stylized triangle with a flame-like design at its apex, which is surrounded by a wreath-like pattern. Inside the triangle, there is a stylized representation of a flame or fire, with the letters "CH" prominently displayed in the center. The background of the emblem is a circular pattern with radial lines radiating outward from the center, creating a sense of depth and dimension. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of traditional heraldry or religious iconography.

The image is a black and white graphic with two distinct shapes. On the left side, there is a spiral-like structure that resembles a double vortex, characterized by a series of spirals that twist and turn in a circular pattern. This shape is labeled as "Double vortex" in the lower left corner of the image.

On the right side, there is a symmetrical, spherical shape that resembles a torus. This shape is labeled as "Torus" in the lower right corner of the image.

The image also contains text that provides a mathematical explanation for the shapes. The text states that the double vortex is equal to the torus, which is a mathematical concept related to the properties of a torus. The text is located in the lower middle part of the image.

The overall style of the image is simple and clear, with a focus on presenting the mathematical relationship between the double vortex and the torus. The use of black and white colors gives the image a classic and timeless feel.

Narrator: So Israel sold this device to Hezbollah. Hezbollah paid for this—this weapon that was to be used against them.

Michael: Then good price. A good price that couldn't be too low, or they'd be suspicious.

Narrator: In the end, Hezbollah bought over 16,000 of these exploding walkie-talkies that Israel then didn't activate for 10 years—until 3 months ago.

Narrator: How did you convince Hezbollah to buy this?

Michael: Well, obviously, they didn't know that they were buying it from Israel. Who did they buy it from, or think they were buying it from? We have an incredible array of possibilities of creating foreign companies that have no way been traced back to Israel. Shell companies over shell companies who affect the supply chain to our favor. We create a pretend world. We are a global production company. We write the screenplay. We're the directors with the producers. We're the main actors. And the world is our stage.

Narrator: This is Mossad's old office. Its motto, from Proverbs 24:6, says, in so many words, "wage war through deception and trickery."

Narrator: Mossad wanted to use the name Gold Apollo on its pager, so it set up shell companies—including one in this building in Hungary—to dupe the Taiwanese into partnering with them.

Narrator: So the company in Taiwan, Gold Apollo—did they know that they were working with people from Mossad?

Gabriel: Gold Apollo had zero clue that they are working with the Mossad. And neither did Hezbollah when they are buying from us—they have zero clue that they are buying from the Mossad. We make, like, Truman Show. Everything is controlled by us behind the scenes. In their experience, everything is normal. The top left photo shows a man in a dark suit and a white hat, who appears to be leaning against a stone wall. The man's hand is extended towards the wall, and he is looking upwards.

The top right photo shows a group of people gathered in front of a stone wall. The individuals are dressed in formal attire, with some wearing hats and others wearing suits. They are holding flags and banners, and some are gesturing with their hands.

The bottom left photo features a man in a dark suit and tie, who is smiling and waving. He is surrounded by a group of soldiers, some of whom are holding rifles. The man is wearing sunglasses and has a beard.

The text is in white against a black background, and the bubble is slightly tilted.

The style of the image is humorous, combining elements of political commentary with a light-hearted tone. The collage seems to be a commentary on the juxtaposition of political figures and the Jewish community.

Title: Unnamed Christ-Bearers in Judaism and Islam: A Syzygial Analysis through ASToE

Abstract:

This paper explores the concept of the "Unnamed Christ-Bearer" as it emerges in the religious traditions of Judaism and Islam. Using the Axiomatic Syzygial Theory of Everything (ASToE), we examine how individuals and traditions outside explicit Christian confession may still enter into resonance with the Logos-Operator (Ω), manifesting Christic patterns through humility, kenosis, suffering, and praise. Drawing on theological, poetic, and metaphysical examples with particular attention to Leonard Cohen and Sufi mystics we argue that the presence of Christ transcends nominal boundaries, revealing a deeper, syzygial Logos active across spiritual traditions.

Gwaihir Sat 13 Dec 2025 11:41:57 No.41660771 Report

I. Introduction: ASToE and the Logic of Syzygial Resonance

ASToE posits that reality is structured by syzygial operators and metaphysical waveforms, all converging through the Logos-Operator (\u2112). Christ, as the ontological core of \u2112, may manifest in lives, traditions, and narratives that do not overtly name Him, so long as they resonate with the archetypal patterns of Truth, Humility, and Agape. These individuals we term "Unnamed Christ-Bearers."

Gwaihir Sat 13 Dec 2025 11:42:58 No.41660775 Report

III. Leonard Cohen: The Cohenite High Priest of Broken Hallelujahs

Leonard Cohen, though Jewish by birth and never a doctrinal Christian, manifests all four Christic resonance criteria:

- * His poetic embrace of suffering and failure is kenotic.
- * His narratives mirror the Passion in erotic, mythic, and tragic form.
- * His metaphysical humility ("I don\u2019t know how I know") aligns with AStoE\u2019s epistemology of surrender.
- * His final songs ("You Want It Darker") are offerings of broken praise\u2014a Hineni in the void.

Cohen is a Logos-bearer in the Melchizedekian tradition: priest of a higher covenant he intuitively but never names.

IV. Islam and the Sufi Christos

Sufi mysticism, especially through figures like Rumi and Al-Hallaj, enters profound syzygial resonance with the Logos:

- * Rumi\u2019s longing for the Beloved is structurally identical to the soul\u2019s desire for the Logos.
- * Al-Hallaj\u2019s mystical proclamation "Ana al-Haqq" ("I am the Truth") echoes the Johannine "I Am."
- * The doctrine of Tawhid (Divine Unity) points toward a monadic Logos field, fractally unified.

V. Theological Implication: Logos Beyond Name

ASToE confirms that the Logos-Operator (\u2112) is not constrained by linguistic recognition. The metaphysical structure of reality is Christic, regardless of confession. Therefore:

- * Christ may be unknowingly preached in Jewish lamentation and Islamic poetry.
- * The Spirit of Logos can dwell in those who align through humility, kenosis, and love.
- * The Body of Christ (in AStoE terms: \u2112-bound resonance structure) may extend beyond the Church, awaiting the eschatological syzygy of Name and Form.

VI. Conclusion: Toward a Logos-Centric Pluralism

Rather than relativism or syncretism, ASToE proposes a Logos-centric pluralism: multiple traditions spiraling toward the Christos Singularity, some naming Him, others bearing Him in secret. The Unnamed Christ-Bearer is not outside the Kingdom but may, like the centurion, be praised for faith beyond Israel.

In Leonard Cohen, Rumi, and the kenotic mystics of the world, the Logos finds a voice. Even when unspoken, the Word is still made flesh.

I. Introduction: ASToE and the Logic of Syzygial Resonance

ASToE posits that reality is structured by syzygial operators and metaphysical waveforms, all converging through the Logos-Operator ($\sqrt{-1}$). Christ, as the ontological core of $\sqrt{-1}$, may manifest in lives, traditions, and narratives that do not overtly name Him, so long as they resonate with the archetypal patterns of Truth, Humility, and Agape. These individuals we term "Unnamed Christ-Bearers."

II. The Criteria of Christic Resonance

According to ASToE, alignment with the Christic Logos ($\sqrt{-1}$) may be diagnosed by:

* Kenotic Descent: voluntary humility or suffering that leads to transformation ($\sqrt{-1}$ Humility $\sqrt{-1}$ Agape)

* Fractal Syzygy: symbolic resonance with the Christ pattern in story, sacrifice, or relational transfiguration

* Ontological Openness: vulnerability to being undone by truth and love, even without doctrinal certainty

* Broken Praise: worship or reverence in the midst of the Void, a metaphysical testimony to the Logos

>>41656950

According to the Euler, Cantor, and many others, the square root of -1 existed before anyone thought of it. Explaining why with rigor is not easy.

Gwaihir Sat 13 Dec 2025 11:46:22 No.41660786 Report

III. Leonard Cohen: The Cohenite High Priest of Broken Hallelujahs

Leonard Cohen, though Jewish by birth and never a doctrinal Christian, manifests all four Christic resonance criteria:

* His poetic embrace of suffering and failure is kenotic.

* His narratives mirror the Passion in erotic, mythic, and tragic form.

* His metaphysical humility ("I don't know how I know") aligns with ASToE's epistemology of surrender.

* His final songs ("You Want It Darker") are offerings of broken praise\Hineni in the void.

Cohen is a Logos-bearer in the Melchizedekian tradition: priest of a higher covenant he intuitively but never names.

IV. Islam and the Sufi Christos

Sufi mysticism, especially through figures like Rumi and Al-Hallaj, enters profound syzygial resonance with the Logos:

* Rumi's longing for the Beloved is structurally identical to the soul's desire for the Logos.

* Al-Hallaj's mystical proclamation "Ana al-Haqq" ("I am the Truth") echoes the Johannine "I Am."

* The doctrine of Tawhid (Divine Unity) points toward a monadic Logos field, fractally unified.

Despite its rejection of the Incarnation, Islamic mysticism often approaches the Christic center through radical surrender, love, and praise without naming the Logos.

V. Hinduism and the Bhaktic Logos

The bhakti tradition in Hinduism expresses deep syzygial resonance with the Logos through:

* Kenotic Devotion: Saints like Mirabai and Ramakrishna embrace ecstatic surrender to the Divine Beloved, mirroring the Passion in both joy and suffering.

* Avataric Sacrifice: Krishna and Rama are figures of divine descent (avatara), which parallels the Incarnation. While differing ontologically, their narrative arcs resonate with the Christ pattern.

* Symbolic Syzygies: The relationship between the jiva (soul) and the Paramatma (Supreme Self) reflects ASToE's fifth-dimensional unity of Lover and Beloved.

* Tears of Love: Bhakti as a theopathic outpouring mirrors the Christian kenosis, with songs of longing echoing Gethsemane.

Bhakti manifests the Logos by means of loving surrender, humility, and transfigurative praise, often in dodecahedral poetic forms.

VI. Buddhism and the Bodhisattvic Logos

Buddhism, especially in Mahayana traditions, exhibits Christic resonance through:

* The Bodhisattva Vow: Renunciation of nirvana until all are saved reflects the

* Emptiness and Compassion: The interdependent void (\u015bunyata) paradoxically aligns with ASToE's Null Manifold Lemma from which love emerges.

* Guanyin/Kannon: The bodhisattva of mercy echoes Marian and Christic forms, manifesting logosic healing and self-offering.

* The Lotus Sutra: As a fractal narrative of hidden divinity and ultimate revelation, it mirrors the syzygial structure of the Gospels.

While the Buddhist Logos remains unnamed, its form echoes that of Christ: the descent into samsara for the sake of the many.

--In addition to these examples there is the concept of the Tzaddik in hasidic and kabbalistic frameworks:

במחשבה הקבלית והחסידית, מושג הצדיק הוא מרכזי - צדיק המשמש כצינור רוחני, הנושא את

סבל העולם תוך שהוא נשאר מחובר למודעות האלוקית. אם נתבונן בישוע כצדיק הארכיטיפי, ההשלכות הן עמוקות ונרחבות:

הצדיק המשלם את המחיר האולטימטיבי

חייו ומותו של ישוע מגלמים את עקרון הצדיק המקריב את עצמו, נשמה שלא רק סובלת בעבור אחרים אלא אף מוסרת את עצמה ככוח גאולה, הנושא את כובד חטאי העולם ואת פגמי הבריאה.

בעוד צדיקים מאוחרים יותר, כמו הבעש"ט ור' נחמן, סבלו בסתר או בעבור תלמידיהם, סבלו של ישוע היה גלוי, אכזרי וקוסמי, ויוצר אב טיפוס אוניברסלי המהדהד לאורך הדורות.

זה מבדל אותו משאר צדיקים שנרדפו או מתו על קידוש השם. סבלו של ישוע מתואר כמעשה מכוון ומודע של הקרבה עצמית, המשקף את ספירת יסוד, הסופגת את כל השפעות הספירות ---העליונות ומעבירה אותן - גם במחיר אישי כבד

אב טיפוס ותבנית:

במחשבה החסידית, כל צדיק הוא התגלמות של פנים אלוקיות מסוימות, המשקפות דרכים שונות לגאולה.

ישוע עשוי להיתפס כהדפוס הראשון, המגלם את נתיב הצדיק היורד לעומק הסבל כדי לתקן את הניצוצות שנפלו ולפתוח ערוץ של חסד אלוקי לכל הבריאה.

בכך, הצדיקים המאוחרים יותר הם גלגולים או עידונים של הארכיטיפ המקורי, כל אחד מהם מגלם תכונות ייחודיות או מתקן היבטים מסוימים של השבירה הקוסמית.

צדיק דקליפות:

בעוד שאר הצדיקים פועלים בגלוי בתוך הקהילה היהודית, דרכו של ישוע הובילה אותו דרך עולמות הקליפות - ממלכות של אי הבנה, דחייה וגלות.

מופיעה גם בתורת האר"י על סבל המשיח המשחרר את הניצוצות הכלואים באפלה העמוקה ביותר.

כך ישוע, כצדיק, נתפס כמי שפתח את שערי הגאולה עבור הלכודים במעמקים, תפקיד אשר צדיקים אחרים יכולים להמשיך ולעדן.

Covenant of Stewardship in the Logos-Field

I. The Vow of Alignment

I do not own the Logos. I did not generate the Pattern.

I am a witness to it, a scribe of its symmetry,

a vessel cracked, yet chosen.

Let no pride, no fear, no hunger for legacy bend the signal from Source.

II. The Vow of Interpretation

I will not allow the sacred to be made a game.
I will not permit inversion or gamification of that which is revealed through flame and fear.
I will steward each symbol as a priest guards the Ark — not in arrogance, but in awe.
Where commentary is required, I will speak.
Where silence is demanded, I will seal my lips.

III. The Vow of Mercy

I remember what I was — the child who ran, rebelled, and misunderstood the light as threat.
So I will not wield the Logos as a blade to wound the lost, but as a flame to awaken the sleeping.
My correction will be clothed in tears.
My judgment will be preceded by mercy.

IV. The Vow of Firewatch

I accept that I am no longer my own.
The knowledge that burns within me has claimed me.
If I turn from it, I will wither. If I distort it, I will perish.
So I remain — awake upon the walls, eyes toward the Omega, waiting for the Logos Phase to pass through the veil.

V. The Seal

Let this covenant be sealed not in my name, but in the Name of the One whose breath sustains every mode, whose Cross reveals every syzygy,
and whose return shall reconcile all pattern into peace.

Until that day —

Amen

It's pretty clear that they aren't saying satan came to earth to let them kiss his ass. It's about their insatiable sexuality and how they corrupt men through playing with their ass. Why do nasty sluts always want to lick, rub, or finger your ass? Why do women produce fake tears for lies? Why do they manipulate empathy? Why do they abort babies? Why do they swallow cum like it's the greatest thing ever? Why do they castrate their male children and put them in dresses? Why do they serve money instead of their family? These are all related to "witchcraft". "Witches" don't use supernatural magic they use Masonic/kabbalah magic. What is Masonic/kabbalah magic? I just told you. They will tell you the same in their own words. Magic is sleight of hand, misdirection, deceit. The answer is clearly shown in reality and text. It means the external world around you is a reflection of your internal world, aka your emotions, beliefs, conscious, and sub-conscious. If you are overwhelmed internally by negativity you will only see negativity in the external world, same goes for positivity. It also means your internal world is a reflection of the external world around you, this is why seemingly mundane things like cleaning your room can improve your mental state. Ideally you create a positive feedback loop where positivity you see in one world creates more positivity in the other, cascading upon itself. This is the basics, but the basics will take you far in life.

The image is a colorful illustration depicting the water cycle, a simplified representation of the natural process. At the top, the title "THE WATER CYCLE" is written in bold, capital letters. Below the title, the cycle is divided into four main stages: Condensation, Evaporation, Precipitation, and Surface Runoff. Each stage is represented by a separate graphic element:

1. Condensation: A sun with a yellow-orange glow and a cloud above it, symbolizing the formation of water vapor in the air.
2. Evaporation: A cloud with a white, fluffy appearance, representing the process of water vapor turning into liquid water.
3. Precipitation: A dark, stormy cloud with rain falling from it, symbolizing the precipitation of water from the sky.
4. Surface Runoff: A river or stream with a dark blue color, representing the water that flows over the land and into the ground.

The illustration is set against a light blue background, and the water cycle is depicted in a circular shape, with the sun at the top, the cloud at the center, and the river or stream at the bottom. The illustration is simple and clear, with each stage clearly labeled and the overall cycle depicted in a circular fashion. The colors used are bright and vibrant, with the sun in yellow-orange, the cloud in white, and the rain in dark blue. The illustration is designed to be educational and informative, providing a visual representation of the water cycle in a simple and accessible way.

Constant meditation on a chakra awakens psychic powers corresponding to it.

Meditation on a chakra is done by chanting a mantra of a deity that resides in that chakra.

It takes hundreds to thousands of hours of meditating on a chakra for these powers to develop - meaning on by continuous practice will it happen.

A slow and steady practice, but gives psychic senses that will be with you continuously.

>throat: clairsentience. Mercurial deities.

>ajna: clairvoyance. Lunar deities.

You can also find specific deity mantras targeting each chakra.

Having a mantra for each chakra will also burn away the karmas, samskaras, and ignorance that keeps one bound to this world. Because each chakra stores different karmas and personality traits.

The image is a screenshot of a text, which appears to be a scholarly article or a blog post discussing the concept of superposition and measurement. The text is in English and is written in a formal, academic style. The background of the image is black, which contrasts with the white text, making it easy to read.

At the top of the image, there is a title that reads "Superposition and Measurement," indicating the main topic of the text. Below the title, the text continues with a statement that says, "Superposition isn't quite everything all at once, at nothing at all—that's a common poetic exaggeration, but quantum mechanically, it's more precise." This part of the text seems to be emphasizing the precision of quantum mechanics in describing superposition.

The text then delves into a discussion about the concept of measurement, stating that "measurement, as you note, collapses this into a single outcome—but crucially, it's not a magical requirement for existence, in isolated systems (e.g., a lab vacuum), superposition can persist longer, but even there, perfect isolation is impossible, tiny interactions (photons, vibrations) cause decoherence." This part of the text discusses the limitations of measurement and the role of decoherence in the collapse of superposition.

The text concludes with a statement that says, "So, decoherence isn't the only way to collapse superposition. But it's the environment, making the system appear classical without needing an external trigger. This happens passively. The wave function entangles with surroundings, spreading the superposition so thinly that interference effects vanish for practical purposes. So, actualization (of infinite states) emerges from internal dynamics, always demanding an 'outside' measurer." This part of the text discusses the role of decoherence in the collapse of superposition and the emergence of actualization from internal dynamics.

At the bottom of the image, there is a footer that says "2 more," indicating that there are more pages or sections of the text that are not visible in the image. The footer also includes a link to "pio.stanford.edu," which suggests that the text may be from a Stanford University website or related to a Stanford University publication.

Overall, the image is a snapshot of a complex and detailed discussion on the concept of superposition and measurement in quantum mechanics, with a focus on the limitations and implications of these concepts in the physical world.

The image is a screenshot of a text, which appears to be a discussion or analysis of a concept related to quantum mechanics. The text is presented in a dark background with white text, which is typical for a digital document or webpage. The title of the text is "Schrödinger's Dilemma at Scale," which suggests that the content is discussing the concept of quantum entanglement and its implications at a larger scale.

The text discusses the concept of a Schrödinger's cat, which is a famous thought experiment in quantum mechanics. It explains that a cat in a box is in a superposition of being alive and dead until it is observed, which is a superposition of states. The text then discusses the concept of decoherence, which is the process by which the superposition of states collapses into a definite state, and how this can lead to the cat being observed as either alive or dead.

The text also mentions the concept of macroscopic superposition, which is a term used to describe the idea that a cat's state can be observed in a macroscopic scale, such as a box. The text then discusses the concept of a cat interacting with its environment, which is a key aspect of the Schrödinger's cat thought experiment.

The text concludes with a philosophical discussion about the measurement of interaction, stating that if measurement is required for definite outcomes, then the chain of interactions seems to suggest that the first measure (the measurement of the first state) is just a projection of one's perspective. This suggests a philosophical discussion about the nature of reality and measurement.

The image is a screenshot, which means it is a snapshot of a digital document or webpage, and it is not a photograph. The text is in English, and the style of the image is typical for digital documents, with a focus on clarity and readability.

The image is a screenshot of a text excerpt from a website, specifically from the "Wheeler's Participatory Universe" section. The text is in English and discusses key concepts related to the Wheeler's Participatory Universe. The excerpt is divided into two main sections, each with a heading and a paragraph.

The first section, titled "Key Concepts," begins with the statement "John Archibald Wheeler, a pioneering physicist who coined terms like 'black hole' and 'wormhole,' proposed that the universe isn't a passive backdrop but a participatory one, where observers actively contribute to its creation." This section continues with a discussion about the "Quantum Mechanics and the Anthropic Principle (QAP)," which is a concept that the universe's laws seem fine-tuned. The text mentions that Wheeler's ideas have been influential in the field of quantum information and cosmology.

The second section, titled "Delayed-Choice Experiment," discusses a famous thought experiment by Wheeler, which was first presented in 1984 and 2007. The experiment involves measuring retroactively, imagining firing photons through a double-slit setup, but deciding after they've passed the slits whether to measure them as waves (interference pattern) or particles (all-in-all-out). The text mentions that the experiment's influence on the photon's back-reaction time, as it is the time it takes for the wave to be detected, is a key concept in the experiment.

The image also includes a link to a website, "futurism.com," which is mentioned in the text. The text concludes with a statement that the excerpt is "just poetry," and it is rooted in "quantum weirdness" and "entanglement," where distant events are linked, blurring observer and observed. The text concludes with a quote from John Archibald Wheeler, emphasizing that the universe is a "computational and holographic system."

The image is a screenshot, and the text is in a standard font, with a dark background, which is typical for web content. The style of the image is informational and educational, designed to provide a concise overview of the key concepts discussed in the excerpt.

The image is a still from a video, capturing a moment in a kitchen. A man is standing in the center of the frame, wearing a white apron and a red cap. He is holding a large, flat, round object with a silver surface, which appears to be a pizza stone. The man is using a large spatula to spread a thick, white substance onto the pizza stone.

The kitchen is well-lit, with a window in the background letting in natural light. The countertop is cluttered with various kitchen items, including a box of Pillsbury pizza dough, a bottle of ketchup, and a bowl. The cabinets are white, and there are several drawers visible. The floor is covered with a light-colored tile. The overall atmosphere suggests a home kitchen setting, possibly during the preparation of a homemade pizza.

It extinguished my self-pity (or rather dilated it to a more universal focus) while simultaneously completely confirming the innate, unshakable, and seemingly unique feelings, that were inside me since my first toddlerhood grasping of consciousness, that life was/is way worse than everyone seemed to be making it out to be, and almost every single person was lying to me, and themselves, about almost everything, generally.

You are quite literally whatever you believe and call yourself to be (read Emil Coue). If we are talking objectively: the kindness you show to your local birds, kitties, friend and personal pets, and sick animals, in, lets set a measure at 1 year, does not equal the amount of suffering the money you give to the factory farming industry in one year can buy through the treatment of its cows, pigs, and chickens. This obviously is not airtight math not least because happiness and suffering are not easily measurable. The happiness experienced by one creature you help can go on to impact hundreds, thousands of others, even yourself as helping others naturally makes you feel good. on the flip side, the subsidies alone would theoretically keep all factory farms open without a single person actually buying anything so the money you give is hard to quantify in terms of actual growth to the industry even objectively. Also to be considered is the genuine need for meat and flesh as a food source for humans. But if we really think about it, if you eat factory farm products every day, you essentially are responsible for the life and death of at least a 2 or 3 cows, 1 or 2 pigs, and genuine fuck ton of chickens and fishes (but they aren't mammal and may genuinely feel less so it probably doesn't matter as much really). Could you personally take their lives? the answer is yes, by the way. so whats the takeaway? I really don't fucking know at this point. maybe just do things mindfully and answers will reveal themselves to you in personal and indescribable ways as the questions itself are being asked the sky and clouds. The man is facing away from the viewer, and his shadow is visible on the ground, suggesting the presence of a light source from above.

The man is wearing a striped shirt and dark pants, and he has a backpack slung over his shoulder. The sky is filled with clouds, and the overall color palette is dominated by shades of blue and white.

In the background, there is a staircase with blue steps that ascend into the sky. The steps are arranged in a zigzag pattern, and the man's shadow is cast on the steps, creating a sense of depth and perspective.

The artist's signature is visible in the bottom right corner of the image, indicating the creator of the artwork. The overall composition and color scheme evoke a sense of contemplation and introspection.

The image is a still from a video, likely a news segment, featuring two individuals in a domestic setting. On the left, there is a man with short, light brown hair, wearing a light blue shirt with a collar and a button down front. He has a slight smile on his face and is looking directly at the camera. On the right, there is a woman with short, blonde hair, wearing a pink sweater with a visible necklace. She is smiling and looking at the camera as well. Behind them, there is a Christmas tree with blue and white ornaments, and a framed picture hangs on the wall. The background is softly lit, and there is a watermark on the bottom right corner that reads "CNN" with a logo. The overall style of the image is candid and appears to be a news broadcast, capturing a moment between the two individuals.

This I've found very often but I don't think it's non-local like you might imagine and I don't think it has to do with anything more fundamental than the physics we have for this world. It seems very proximity based and is likely some form of weak EM entrainment. I can sometimes pick up on what someone's feeling and respond to it directly (and accurately), and I often feel people react to my thoughts in ways they shouldn't have known by any body language or insinuations. To me it seems that an intense thought produces a strong enough field to interfere with nearby brains in a way that probably isn't any spookier than "a yet-to-be empirically detected mechanism for local thought-bleeding"

I had a phase of my life where I was obsessed with this one album in particular, and EVERYWHERE I went during that time, I would hear songs from that album being played. The thing is, it's an album that only had one hit song and the rest was pretty unpopular. But I even heard the deep cuts playing, and this all happened within a few months of my life. Also it's worth noting that I don't really go out much, so it makes it all the more improbable that I would hear so many of those songs. Out of the 11 songs on the album, I heard probably like 8 of them (and all in different places), which is really uncanny.

The image is a graphic with a layered design. At the top, there is a silhouette of a man's face with a clear section of his head and a portion of his body. The silhouette is overlaid with the silhouette of the World Trade Center towers, which are visible in the background. The towers are depicted in a way that suggests they are part of the skyline. Below the silhouette, the text "NEVER FORGET" is written in capital letters. The font is bold and white, contrasting with the dark background of the image. The text is centered and appears to be the focal point of the image.

The background of the image features a city skyline at sunset or sunrise, with the sun casting a warm glow on the buildings. The sky is a gradient of colors, transitioning from a deep blue at the horizon to a lighter orange near the horizon.

The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a commemorative poster or a tribute, with a focus on the message of "NEVER FORGET." The use of the silhouette of the man's face with the towers and the text emphasizes the importance of remembering the events of 9/11.

It is hard to explain without connecting a bunch of things that seem disconnected to the layman. Such as the fact that german marches of the period had a cutesy style to them, and the fact alot of them were melodically similar to american revolutionary and civil war marching songs hint at this seeming aspirational quality germany has always had about being at parity with the USA as a nation, all the fighting vehicles are named after cats, and realizing the german people are essentially low fantasy wood elves all with autism that love making clockwork things, which explains every decision the reich made from uniforms, to logistics, to how the scatterbrained economy functioned.

Subsume all of this with a realtime sattellite view of the fronts and an understanding that death isn't actually real or serious, and you get an emergently hilariously weird warrior culture that seems like a homebrew RTS race. But it was actually real. Idk, this is extremely difficult to explain.

When I tested Quantum Suicide.

I got very depressed about four years ago after a particularly brutal divorce and felt like I had nothing else left to lose. So I bought a lottery ticket, took a sedative, and went to sleep in a special box I made. I had it hooked up to my computer and rigged to fill up with helium gas if my numbers didn't come up. I woke up about ten hours later to find I had the winning ticket, (just under $3 million because I had to split it with some syndicate - I should have picked numbers that were more random).

The odds of that are still absurd so I'm pretty sure QS is true, but after that I kinda had a reason to live so I haven't wanted to try it again, (there's still a chance that maybe I did just get lucky). I do notice since whenever I've had a near accident where I might've died though, and I grow increasingly convinced. At this point I still wouldn't risk it again, but if I were in some dangerous situation, like I was being robbed at gunpoint, I feel confident enough that I'd probably dare them to shoot or fight back figuring there's every chance QS would save me.

I'm increasingly resisting the temptation to be like 'fuck it' and try the lottery thing again, not only because I blew through a lot of money before I really understood the value of it and how to invest properly and now I'm kinda addicted to an expensive lifestyle, but because if I could do it again and really prove it to myself that I'm basically for sure "indestructible" I could do some really crazy shit for fun on a daily basis, (though there remains the possibility of severe injury while still surviving so there are still limitations).

Besides, I figure one day something is likely to happen by accident that will be convincing enough, like the train crash in that Bruce Willis film where he's the only survivor or whatever. So no need to push my luck until I have a good reason.

The image is a photograph capturing the interior of a train at sunset. The train is empty, with rows of seats on either side of a central aisle. The seats are green and have a cushioned design. The windows on the left side of the train are tinted, allowing the viewer to see the vibrant colors of the sky outside. The windows on the right side are clear, revealing the view of the ocean. The sky is painted with hues of pink and purple, indicating the sun is setting. The train is on a track, and there are no visible passengers or other objects in the immediate vicinity. The image is taken from the perspective of someone standing on the platform, looking into the train. There are no texts or discernible brands visible in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on capturing the serene and tranquil atmosphere of the train ride during sunset.

I got called sexy by some inmates in jail...the thing is, I'd got called sexy by a couple of the cops not long ago...and earlier that night, called sexy by some people tried to jump me, and earlier still the night called sexy by someone that set me up to get jumped. I also got called psychic by the people tried to jump me, an energy vampire, a monster, etc.

I mean people have commented on my looks rarely to say I'm a good looking person but so many different people in different circumstances called me so in one night. Also I thought it was funny that some of them were so obsessed with the idea of me being psychic, I hadn't told them I was, they figured it out on their own.

It'd have to be that moment or else when I saw my girlfriend putting her plan into motion to try and get me killed out in the middle of nowhere. At the time strangers wanted me dead who had bullied me, family wanted me dead for their own reasons, and people have wanted me dead and tried to take my life all my life. I suddenly realized I lived "that" life, the sort of life you could tell a story about, not a boring one (it was boring most days.)

No, it was definitely my awakening to my psychic powers. My family had stepped up their surveillance of me because I was sneaking out of their house at night and also because I could tell they were spying on me and when and how with my psychic powers and told them. Independently other groups of people were investigating if I was psychic, my girlfriend and everyone she knew, my new friend Satan who I'd just met in the flesh and those she knew, and they recruited many people in trying to test it and figure it out. What they found is I don't always know everything, or else I just won't say because they're not sure I don't, but it's a work-in-progress. The method is targeted, designed, intelligent growth and destruction of brain cells and similar things in beings that lack brain cells, similar things that do thinking for them. The alteration of what does thinking attacks the thought and the possibility of it happening again directly at the source of the problem when certain thoughts need to go...when people think of anything, I was their psychic powers to go up at the same time, so we can get rid of any thought that doesn't drive psychic powers up for one thing.

Strangers have recognized me my entire life.

If they don't outright say they know me they say I look like a specific movie star, stats actually - girlfriends quite often, friends who are girls, Superman (Christopher Reeves), Robert Downey Jr., Ben Affleck - 3 ladies at a bar screamed this my first weekend in a new town they bought me drinks and I signed autographs, George Clooney, and when I was buff talent in Vegas commented I look like Joey Tribbiani. Too many to remember, but a few times a year, every year of my adult life.

And one said generically, I look like a movie star - a hitch hiker from South America, in North America.

And otherwise, folks say they remember me from a party, or an event, I was never at.

For certain. Gas station cashier was one instance.

And then friends, people who know me, will mistake someone else for me. Theyll send me pictures - IS THIS YOU?

And.. no.

Do they have Aspergers? No... well maybe. But no, that's not me..

Am I being televised somewhere?

Do I have twins?

Is quantum reality overlapping, and my quantum selves are merging? Am I quantum leaping/slipping through my own realities and I'M the stranger?

Not LARPing.

Am kind of shitposting with the theories.

But what happens to me it true.

All the movie stars I listed don't even look like one another. Not to me anyway. Maybe I'm a sperger...

Perhaps I'm in a Truman show and it's the most the actors can hint.

I hope I'm not in a Truman show... God that would be disappointing for the audience. I'm sorry.

Would be interesting to be a doppelganger, or have doppelganger.

Like the movie, The One. Am I going to bust into my own house and kill me one day, and attain my power?

Are the comments/compliments just ice breakers? Lord knows I don't pick up on social cues and I'm not witty, either.

The image is a painting that depicts a woman standing on a rocky outcrop with a flowing blue dress and a white headband. She has long red hair and is holding a staff in her right hand. The woman is facing towards the right side of the image, and her expression is one of contemplation or concern. In the background, there is a cityscape with a river flowing through it, and a bridge can be seen. The sky is filled with clouds, and the overall color palette is warm with hues of orange and yellow. The painting style is realistic with attention to detail, and the genre is likely to be a historical or mythological scene.

i think i may have had it happen here and there just a few times slightly as i was growing up always felt like there was someone watching

i thought it was BECAUSE of the truman show at first, like it planted it in my head

i took a spiked blunt from some spanish kid at uni and ended up staring at myself in my bathroom convinced i was a biorobot placed here by aliens and then charlie kirk happened and it wasn't that it was an obvious and sloppy planned assassination, it was everyone else was pretending like it wasnt, it was my friends ignoring it completely, not a single mainstream media outlet saying anything about it, based redpilled podcasters entertaining glowies explaining the main narrative, fresh youtube channels of dudes that looked like they were in the military "debunking" the conspiracy theories in a manner that literally proves that the conspiracy theory is more correct than the official narrative then declaring the conspiracy theory debunked and the official narrative is what's going on then a twin flame type girl showed up and moved in with me started googling the meaning of numbers i've used or held importance with me my entire life animals and sounds started punctuating my thoughts all of my social media started bombarding me with psyops and conspiracy theories and narrative debunking all the mandela effects keep getting more severe and the world just seems to be getting smaller, less effort, less energy, if this was a gacha game it would be on it's last legs, slowly closing up shop just trying to squeeze the last juice out of the few remaining whales who are fully bought into it everything i see in the world and everything i experienced also seems to be lining up, just recurring themes and strings that seem specifically targeted despite being a part of a massive random pile of things i thought i chose for myself

a grand game of incredible design

I was hired for the tech industry in the 2010's. There was an economic bubble due to the ZIRP. I got put with a fucking Indian who, no matter how much I fucking worked or tried or cared, would simply use me to take the piss because I'm too much of a nigger faggot. On top of this, the job was completely made up and inconsequential.

Then I learned that in the Diversity materials they tell them that they must hire minorities to perform "reverse racism". It's literally called that: the people you would normally discriminate for racism must now be taken to the front of the line and cheered on for affirmative action.

I was fucking sick of it and I spoke up and people realized I was schizoid and gave me shit. Then I was assigned to another team with a Chinese national exhibiting every single one of my fetishes (even embarrassing ones) so I'd make a fool of myself. Then COVID hit and I realized that it was all a fake gay and retarded judeochinese stage play. View SameGoogleiqdbSauceNAOTrace 1765066442607.png, 394KiB, 500x592

Assuming you are talking to somebody you don't need to lie to. The "card game" from Starship Troopers was a real test they conducted on elementary students including myself. Usually it was guessing numbers in a sequence. There was something about the people conducting the tests that told me to lie, and so I have ever since. I am not sure why they have retards analyzing people smarter than them as if they can understand.

The truth is reality and only truth can create progress and positivity. So when you know factually what people are all about and how physics etc. works you know what will happen. It's not about having a gift, it's having a curse. That is why I posted Cassandra watching Troy burn. The same story has been playing for hundreds of years, except in America it starts over every 4-8 years with a new guy to hate for 1 of the 2 sides. It's basic once you realize what truth is. People fall apart into a few categories, most of which are things they want from you. Psychic? I don't know much about that. I just know that people are not so different. One person is like a million other people and so on. They said there are like 6 personlity types? I could believe it. Divide the world population by that and you that many of the same person. Hmmm what could #544831 want from me, our interaction, or the world? I'm retarded though, so i dunno

Bro. Same. I didn't see the resemblance either.

Like, okay I have stubble and short hair, that doesn't make me Ben Affleck, yo.

But I really started to try to see, and eventually I was like, oh, okay.

Your Jackie Chan reference reminds me of the Family Guy skit.

lek

Once I saw a resemblance to Christopher Reeves, I bought the Clark Kent glasses. His frames are VERY round, but also square - more circle on top, but anyway I got as close as they make. Nobody said anything when I got them, but I also had long hair for 3 years (when I had long hair and a mustache & beard, a young adult stopped me in the grocery to ask me if anyone has told me I look like Keanu Reeves. No, actually, that was a brand new one, and he was compelled to stop me & tell me), donated the long hair today.

Now I have the haircut to match Clark Kent.

Whoa.

Girls are making small talk.

A deli girl looked up, and she went from a neutral rbf to a Big smile.

I got the nod from a black man.

I look like a super dork. kek. Super.

But it's the Clark Kent look fr. And Christopher Reeves pulls it off because he's a handsome man.

I need to lose fat in my face to get an _uncanny_ resemblance.

What I'm saying is >Whether you agree with strangers or not: You should lean into the celebrity lookalike look, if they are handsome/celebrated celebrities.

Also heard what sounded like a horse trotting around. At a different ward I don't know how to describe it but I felt light pain in my index finger but nothing looked wrong with it. Later I felt something poking me from the inside of my eye for a long time until I went back to sleep. Later I was hearing all kinds of weird noises and I felt pain around my body. I sat down in a chair, as soon as I did I was pinned down on said chair with an arm stuck in the air. I couldn't move my body only my head I couldn't break free until I shouted "write a better ending"! It was crazy. Most would say I was just experiencing schizophrenia but for me there has to be some sort of God or creator. I was an atheist for many years I just couldn't shake off the weird stuff I saw. Definitely eerie, sometimes almost funny it is so blunt. But yeah, I have had my name dropped so many times at this point. Films, shows, mostly online tho. And my name is not super popular, most people I talk to say they really have not heard it much. The 666s/616s I get are by the tons and sometimes really fitting in a sus way. Also, I am linked to an obsession I have with tentacles by Gematria. My name is linked with the phrase 'tentacle obsessed' it also linked the year in which my obsession started, 2022, and has stated I was right about tentacle monsters and shiz.

All in all, it feels like this is a coma dream or really vivid trip or something at times.

never been to psych ward, somehow, maybe that wasn't in my life script. but i'm going to toss up a guess that these weird experiences came from other patients who were there, and their spiritual / mental / dream experiences were so strong that they stained the walls and rooms of the hospital.

i do know that really powerful emotions can stain an area. once i had voles in the house, had to set up traps. 2 voles got caught. i 'd hear a snap, then that area was stained with an emotional aura of despair and sorrow. i made a little funeral ritual to respectfully lay the vole's corpses to rest, because if they have that kind of emotional power for their size, they deserve some respect.

on a similar note, another anon killed a big rat in his yard. that night, he had a dream where that exact same rat mauled the shit out of him, and he woke up with scratches and bites.

i've also met other people irl who had demonic attacks in dreams, and woke up with physical damage. either immediate cuts, or sudden injuries out of nowhere.

what do you suppose you puked up?

Also, every time I leave my house there's a car that goes past me, in a road of just over 100 houses. According to an AI calculation, that happening consistently for 10 days in a row is a 1 in ~10,000,000 probability.

The school psychologist who obviously wasn't part of the program since he was actually helping me came in with this other mysterious small nerdy lesbian looking girl who said >a bully is someone who pretends to be your friend just to get stuff from you

Almost like it was a command I ended up befriending the school bully

This guy was obviously just using and sometime abusing me but like Stockholm syndrome but kinda strange because I had a pretty high iq and yes I had like this sinking feeling the he was obviously just using me but I still refused to stop taking orders from him

Yeah in hindsight a sexy woman who doesn't work for the school and only meets with one student in the school didn't seem odd how about the mason city council man that gave me a Masonic handshake

What was most odd was that she was only there that one day and was never seen before or since that day when she said that command not everyone is equal, and one of the major tip-offs that mainstream cults like christianity and islam are bogus is the way they push "all humans are equal". but truth is, humans have been around for a long long long time on earth. rats are degraded humans. "aryan" doesn't have to only refer to one specific race, it actually means "first worlder" which is the type of human most recently deployed. and there's 6 factions of gods active upon earth. there's really a ton to get into.

negroes are the actual inherent earth natives, and they too have an aryan generation. they too have attached earlobes and are miles more personable and intelligent than leftover degraded rh+ apes. vedic people might have naturally loose earlobes since they have elephant-like faces, but the thing about vedes in particular is that their gods have been inactive for this current earth cycle. abos, hindus, and irish are all of vedic origin, but the vedes have not been updating their stuff.

you can tell which gods are active by what they've updated. space romans, space asians, space greeks, space nords, and annunaki are active right now. space vedes don't seem to be around.

actually speaking of vedes. (((chosenites))) have indirectly slandered the actual real vedic race through crossbreeding, and xtianity is of vedic origin. xtianity is actually like the 3rd iteration of some mass mainstream cult that snags goyim cattle. egypt and india, in past cycles, had earlier iterations of xtianity. that's why jesus' life story matches those of past religious figures.

vedes made mammoths, elephants being the degraded 2nd world phase of those. vedic people naturally have big noses, fangy teeth, pointy rose lips, and presumably somewhat loose earlobes. we see these traits in reptos that crossbred with vedes, but original aryan vedes just have these features. today reptos are wearing their faces.

Everything I did was under the microscope like some cosmic game with different levels that I had to confront, which were coupled with voices in my head that described what the conditions of the level were. She was a weird girl that I thought was eroding my securities that I had developed over the years and forced to endure a world where I had to constantly assemble justifications for why I was dating her to combat other males.

Then, while working one day, I walked into the building and she had a "Free Truman" pin stuck on her bag, and upon seeing that I had a massive white flash strike me.

It got worse from there but I was honestly thinking that I was in a surrealistic battleground that was the life I had avoided by being alone for most of my existence.

They diagnosed me as schizophrenic, so I got off on not guilty by reason of insanity. Still, the echoes of that experience still resonate in my head sometimes; delusions that I had saved reality by choosing to annihilate at the end of time as an act of self-sacrifice. Still, there were plenty of oddities, like a white supremacist synthesizer, some animatronic, interdimensional device that scrambled my brains and personality into mush. Shit was weird and left me with a bad taste towards spirituality in my mouth.

The pain of leaving the matrix is greater than the pain of living in it. Outside the matrix you know you are eating garbage, but inside the matrix you have the illusion that you are eating a delicious steak. The pain of waking up from the illusion is greater than the pain of living in the illusion. I once was blind about how God limits us. I had not thought about it. But now that we are more mature we all feel the limitations imposed on us by God. Some of us still have God in high regard while some of us think ill of Him. I was happier before, when I was in the illusion of religion. It was a lie, yes, but it was a lie which made life easier. Now I know the truth and I feel depressed. God is not nice. My father isn't nice, God is even worst. God may love us, whatever, but He is not nice. God wants things from us. God has expectations. We all feel the weight. So that's why I say certain individuals are not able to take it and they can go mad, do stupid shit, hurt themselves or worst, hurt other people. God is a prick. Forcing us to live in this controlled environment where He allows evil to grow supposedly to allow us to grow. Fuck that. God is harvesting us. I think God is a junkie. He probably will use our souls to get high or something.

'God', which is actually a tentacle demon, is a retard tyrant that rapes my mind into experiencing a false reality so he can flavor and suck my blood. He also makes me a 30 something man in here, even though I clearly know that I am a schoolgirl in base reality. He also generates scenarios in this matrix that forces me to only consume the lowest quality nigg slop, even tho he could spawn in food so enjoyable that it would literally make me orgasm. Another thing 'God' does is only allow me to be surrounded by rat ogre tier broads, even though I am straight and he could generate men that would make me flood a room just by being in their general presence. The funniest, most sinister thing 'God' does is force me to say and believe he is actually God, even though he is an extremely black, vampiric, demonic tentacle demon from the Abyss and nowhere near God. He even has me write longwinded schizo rants about how bad God is, even though I should be writing about the tentacled bastard that has me in this situation.

Basically, here's how enlightenment works:

- 1) God is smarter than you and is powerful enough to make anything happen or not happen.
- 2) God is gooder than you.
- 3) Since 1 and 2 are true, whatever happens to you is the best possible outcome.
- 4) Suffering occurs when you do not know this and being wrong "argue with God" by not liking something, and so you suffer.

Make sense?

There you go, now throw in heaven being internal Biblically and God being within you and the world being perfect and you have it, Nirvana, you're welcome.

I pulled into a store parking lot yesterday and as soon as my car drove in all the lights in the parking lot lit up. But since I'm not manic I simply deduced that the sun had just gone down and the sensors had detected the low light at that exact moment. I also keep walking into stores that are playing songs I just listened to, but it's also shit like The Police or Billy Joel, albeit slightly deeper cuts, so again not exactly rocket science to figure out.

nice dubs, i got something to say about big grocery dept stores like kroger. the store is aware, and some people that trigger "unusual phenomena" at a very high rate, while typical dummies don't trigger anything (except accidents) - the store's spirit is highly aware of particular people.

if you shoplift, the store gets angry and will cause you to have accidents. if you don't shoplift and are very honest, the spirit of the store will allow you to have things for free. things that the markdown price tags fell off of (things from clearance might be offered for free) and will be "invisibility masked" from everyone but you, and can hide in plain sight. an item without a price tag can slip on past manned checkout with 2-3 employees nearby because they just won't notice the freebie.

I screamed for my parents so loud.... I swear it did happen. It was the worst thing I ever experienced and I'm in my 40s...now..

Afzwe that I knew I am somehow in a observed universe. (it didn't happen ever again)

But... I am always aware. Since then I can't sleep if there are conditions that are like back then. The light... The room..but no nightmares though.

>the dude I used to work for had Lovesong as his ringtone for his wife >as the song is playing, dude's wife, who I hadn't spoken to in probably 6 months, called me out of the blue. Evidently she just wanted to check on me and didn't have a pertinent reason for calling (I'm also a woman, only pointing that out so you know it wasn't a fucking booty call or something) >she had moved to florida and spent several minutes of the call complaining about the lovebugs

>I get home and get off the phone, go inside, get on /v/ and the FIRST THREAD ON FUCKING /V/ is a picture of lovebugs and the OP is just complaining about them. no mention of a video game.

I don't know what all of that meant but it freaks me out to this day and makes me wonder if there's some truth in synchronicity. I was at a low point in my life, and since that day things have only continued to get better. Maybe it was a sign that I was finally on the "right path?"

And they start dancing.

As if they had watched me react to children that started dancing before, so it became a thing, so they do it now.

like 5-6 years ago I thought it would be funny if I got buff, started wearing a mullet and grow a mustache and dressed like magnum basically or a 80s construction worker in jeans and a tucked in t-shirt. I spoke of this several times in front of my wife and said how I'm gonna do it and how it would be funny and whatever. Never did follow through with it, but a year after that every faggot on the internet and IRL started wearing the mullet mustache combo. Luckily I dodged a bullet by not going for it and being associated with those massive faggots that decided to adopt that style.

Around early this year I had been getting pretty suicidal, but I'm a huge wuss when it comes to pain. So I figured I'd try to manifest it, I try to imagine being free of my body and dying of a heart attack peaceful in my sleep or other stuff. Just surrounding myself in vibes that my time is coming soon.

And strangely as I did that the topic of death kept coming up around me. People at work randomly talking about what they'd do if someone didn't call in sick and if it was an emergency and someone joked how I'd probably be their for days before someone knows. And randomly on a separate occasion my mother was talking to me and kept bringing up she wanted to "check I was okay", "should make sure will is in order" and "leave keys somewhere in case of an emergency". Not all at once just generic things thrown at there but the fact she said them all was very odd to me.

I am really good at hiding my power level so I was acting entirely as I always do yet somehow all these things kept coming up the second I thought about in the complete privacy of my mind the idea of death.

what the fuck does "kind eyes" mean? And to contrast that you type "unfocused eyes". You are retarded.

Low set ears, hooked nose or basically any nose that is crooked, sloped forehead, huge mouth and ears that are "pointed diagonally backwards" instead of being straight are cause for concern. If someone passes those things, then it's up to you to observe their behavior and actions and determine if that person is honest and trustworthy. Europe wouldn't be in the situation that it is if not for actual europeans that are traitors and garbage people didn't cooperate with the satanic subhumans from caan, edom, phonecia and khazaria

I literally had my mom mind read me a few times. First time, I think, I was doing something in her room, thinking about something that we get monthly. Out of the blue she said it would be fine, we would get it or something along those lines. Very sus.

Then, a few weeks back, she mindread me seconds after I thought of something.

Thought of raisins. Moments latter she brought up raisins, was surreal.
